Zeo Zee Wilkins, beautiful 35 year old osteopath found murdered in her home Tuesday, lies alone in death, deserted by the score of fashionable friends and admirers who had fought for her favors in life.At the undertaking parlors where the body of the dasping divorcee, six times the bride of wealthy men whom she used merely as fodder for her unconquerable spirit of adventure, was taken, attendants said no one had called to see her.An occasional passerby stops mo- mentarily in front of the establishment, looks inquiringly in and then proceeds on his way in slow and measured steps. No relatives have arrived and no funeral arrangements have been made pending the inquest to be held Friday.Meanwhile police are hopelessly lost in a maze of new developments. The murder trail led to a junk-yard Thursday, where Sam Russell, an employee identified the knife used in the slaying as belonging to Dillard Davis, negro janitor of the "mystery house."Davis told police Wednesday he had*not seen Dr. Wilkins for several days previous to her murder. He will be questioned again, officers stated.*While concentrating on their search for a man and a woman who were seen to drive up in front of the Wilkins home in a costly motor Sunday night by a street vendor, detectives pushed aside the portals shielding the last few years of the divorcee's romantic existence.Here amid the intrigue and strange plots essaying from the cunning brain of the adventures, there ran a strain of disappointment and sorrow. A child of fortune in her earlier years, dissipation and lavish spending had reduced her to a woman who found it difficult to acquire the bare necessities of life.A list of names of more than forty men in which were included her former husbands and their friends, was found by officers but none offered any definite clue to the slayer.Another instance in which she de- clared she feared death at the hands of plotters was told Thursday by Otis Green, garage manager."Dr. Wilkins told me two weeks*ago that he almost killed me yesterday and I'm afraid he will." She*was speaking of her brother," Green*told police.*Charles Wilkins, the brother, has*been arrested, but denies participation in the crime. He admits having slapped his sister, however, on numerous occasions and once forcing her to sleep in the front porch of the house after she had irritated him.*B. F. Tarpley, of Kansas City*Kas., and assistant yard master of*the Kansas City Terminal Railway Co., a patient and friend of Dr. Wilkins, was questioned again Thursday but no additional details were learned, police said.*The case was continued until to-*morrow morning.*Mrs. Love Rogers, widow of the slain man, also is to be tried on the same charge, it being alleged that she aided in burying the body in a corn field at the rear of the Rogers home, cultivating a crop over the grave.Doctors examined Rogers and re- ported to the court that he had fever, sheriff also announced that Rogers, who had been gassed in the world war, suffered epileptic fits while in jail.After the death, J. A. Rogers and Mrs. Love Rogers fled to Florida, where they were arrested and returned to this county to stand trial.Washington, March 20.—Assured of*protection as the American Legion gave him against mob violence in his country, Grover Cleveland Bergdall, wealthy draft dodger, has promised to return to the United States shortly to begin serving his sentence.Officials of the American Legion an- nounced Thursday that Bergdall has promised to be back in the United States within a month. He is under contract to serve five years at hard labor for evading the draft. This sentence was pronounced March 30, 1920, and two months later Bergdall made a sensational escape and fled to Ger-many.*Pot of Gold Story.*After telling army officers who were arresting him a story about a pot of gold buried in the Maryland hills, Bergdall was permitted to undertakean expedition to locate the hidden gold which he had buried early in war. But while visiting at his home Philadelphia, he eluded his guards and escaped to Europe. He has spent most of his time since then in Germany, where a recent unsuccessful attempt was made by Lieut. Hoover Griffis, of Hamilton, Ohio, to kidnap him. Griffis was arrested and only recently obtained his release and returned to the United States.Kidnapping Roused Suspicion.*It is now revealed that just prior to this attempted kidnapping, Bergdall had about decided to return to the United States and serve his sentence. It was the only way he could hope to recover his fortune of $75,000,000 now掌握 by the United States government. But the kidnapping episode aroused Bergdall's suspicion and he had to return to the United States if he was mobbed.Later new negotiations began,*these were conducted through Leigh-*lin H. Blood, of New York, who was*commanded by the American Legion*to give Bergdall assurances that the*legation would protect him from mob*suspicion.*At the war department, it is de-*clared that any sort of governmental*protection has been promised.*Suspect Army Officers.*Two reasons actuated the legi-*tation in trying to bring about*Bergdall's return. ## WARRANTS ISSUED FOR FRANK BINZ

Monroe, La., March 20.—Warrants for the arrest of Frank J. Binz, of St. Louis, president of the Monroe-Louisiana Carbon Company of Hancock, La., against which company and official 20 bills of information were filed in the sixth district court here several days ago in the gas investigation by District Attorney George Grant today to be served, according to court officials.

The bills of information on which the warrant was based charged that the company violated the law regulating the production and use of gas in the manufacturing of carbon.

The Ouachita grand jury which has been investigating alleged violations of the conservation laws was expected to complete its work within the next few days.

public information as to the results of the election.

Too Literal Interpretation.

Attorney General George M. Naper, in an opinion written February 14, has held that this excessively literal interpretation of the law is not required, since it is not through the difficulty will arise in future elections, when the attorney general's official opinion becomes generally known.

The clause in question was held by a few election officials to mean that they could not announce the result of the balloting at their precinct in the McAdoo-Underwood race for the presidential nomination until it had been announced by the state democratic executive committee from official returns sent in from each county by mail. It was pointed out that, in event of a close election, such an interpretation of the law would result in keeping everybody, candidates, their helpers and managers, and the general public, in ignorance of the result until every county had sent in its official returns, which does not usually happen until several days after the election. For instance, Mrs. Anderson, who was elected to the state executive committee, Thursday afternoon had heard from only two counties and the chairman of the county democratic executive committee had overlooked signing the returns in one of these two instances, necessitating the return of his report for signature before it can be officially recorded.

Clayton Sends Return.

Clayton county was the first one to get its report into Mrs. Anderson's hands, giving 471 votes to McAdoo and 449 to Underwood. This report was signed by D. P. Melvin, chairman.

Rockdale county, the second report received, had to be returned for the chairman's signature. It showed, however, no votes for McAdoo and 444 for Underwood.

The opinion of the attorney general was written in response to an inquiry about the operation of section 13 of the law, from Charles D. Toney, of Fairburn, chairman of the executive committee of Campbell county.

In his reply, the attorney general says:

Attorney General's Answer.

Replies to your question, involving the construction of section 13 of the law of 1922, seems not to be free from serious

A fair and reasonable construction seems to be that this information is to be withheld from the public, and that the standing of any candidate in the race or the number of votes secured for any candidate in an election, with a view of preventing such disclosure as might influence the voters in any district of the county or state, and who may desire to do so.

It is the great objective of this law seem to be to prevent the giving out of information, as well as the giving out of information to influence voters to cast their ballots contrary to their convictions.

Section 13 referred to reads as follows:

"Any manager, clerk, other officer engaged in or officiating in any election of any kind or character held in this state, or his agent, or any person, or persons, thereof, who shall give out, tell, make known, or furnish during the progress of any such election, at any time, except when making official returns, where required by legal process, any data, memorandum or other information concerning which voters or voters have not voted, concerning for whom any voter or voters have voted, or concerning how many votes have been polled for any candidate, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction punished as prescribed in section 1665 of the Penal Code of 1910.

difficulty of construction. It may be that the law, in trying to safeguard the complete privacy of results of an election, has gone to an extent of impossibility.

All statutes are subject to a reasonable construction and a substantial compliance with the law is in every case all that is exacted. It seems next to be the policy of the law to bring into the technicalities in construction or operation.

Now, the law seems to provide especially for the fact as to how any voter or voters have voted, either concerning the candidate supported or the issue supported by such voter or voters.

The law continues, that none of the managers, clerks or other officers, or persons, of any kind, shall tell or make known "concerning how many votes have been polled for any candidate in an election, when making official returns or when required by legal process."

Object of the law, probably to prevent the giving out of information, as well as the giving out of information to influence voters to cast their ballots contrary to their convictions.

It is the great objective of this law seem to be to prevent the buying and selling of votes, as well as the giving out of information to influence voters to cast their ballots contrary to their convictions.

Section 13 referred to reads as follows:

ACTS ASKED ON SALE OF ARMS TO MEXICO

COOLIDGE TO SPEED UP LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Washington, March 20.—A resolution calling upon Secretary Weeks for information regarding the sale of arms to Mexico was adopted today in the senate.

The resolution introduced by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, and approved without debate, asks the secretary to cite the "particular statutory authorization" under which the arms were sold. Information also is sought as to what requests to purchase arms have come from other governments.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, suggested that the resolution might call for "how long the arms sold to Mexico remained in the possession of those to whom they were delivered."

TECHNICAL PLEAS BANNED IN COURTS OF MISSISSIPPI

Jackson, Miss., March 20.—The Mississippi senate today passed a bill which would prohibit dismissal of inmates because of the omission of such terms as "maliciously," "wilfully" and "feloniously." The measure is intended to prevent criminals from escaping punishment because of mere technicalities.

CALDWELL NAMED TO PEACH GROWERS AS CANNING EXPERT

Washington, March 20.—Special Agent J. S. Caldwell, physiologist and canning expert of the bureau of plant industry of the agricultural department, has been appointed by Secretary Wallace to confer with the representatives of the Georgia peach growers of Macon, regarding the possibility of developing the canning industry in Georgia. The appointment was made upon the request of Senator George of Georgia.

It is the desire of the Georgia peach exchange to develop the canning industry in connection with peach growing upon a strictly commercial and credit basis. A number of matters require attention in addition to the technical feasibility of the varieties grown for canning, such as the question of whether a profitable outlet for canned peaches of these varieties can be developed.

Secretary Wallace, assured Senator George that this initial step will have the full cooperation of the department of agriculture.

COOLIDGE GIVES FATHERLY ADVICE TO GROUP OF BOYS

Washington, March 20.—President Coolidge interrupted his work for a while today to give some fatherly advice to a group of boys who called to ask him to hear a committee arranging for the nation-wide celebration, April 27 to May 3, of "Boys' week."

"I have two boys of my own," the president reminded his callers. "I tell them there are only two things necessary for boys—work hard and behave themselves. Do that and there won't be any doubt about the future of this country."

"The boy is the father of the man. Remember that when you grow up you will be about the same kind of a man as you are a boy. You don't need to rob yourself of your boyhood, but you can gain pleasure in a manly way. You will find when you grow up that the things you learn now will be the things you must know then. You will have to obey the laws, and it is important for you to learn the lessons of obedience now."

"Remember that this is your country and the country will be what you make it. A good boy now will make a good citizen later."

DIRECTOR SMITH ISSUES WARNING ON OIL SUPPLY

Washington, March 20.—Director George Otis Smith of the geological survey, urged in a statement today that attention be given to the country's oil supply to protect commercial and industrial interests.

Smith's per capita consumption of crude oil last year was six and one-half barrels, he said. In 1908, when it was only two barrels.

In 1908, the statement continued, the output of the oil wells was about a quarter of what it was last year.

"Since President Taft inaugurated the withdrawal policy," the director said, "gasoline production has jumped from 100 million gallons a year to seven and one-half billion, as reported by the bureau of mines, and the production and consumption of fuel and gas oils and lubricants also show large increases, especially in the last few years."

"Already the peace demand for petroleum products has far outpaced the war break and industry is in need of oil continues. The earlier record was taken as justifying federal action and these later developments, it is believed, fully warrant deliberate attention to the oil problem of today. No short-sighted policy in oil can serve this nation in its interest in dependence on petroleum."

Washington, March 20.—President Coolidge's announced drive to speed up the legislative program will begin tomorrow night when republican house leaders will be his guests at a white house dinner conference. Senate leaders will be summoned later.

Those invited to participate in the discussion tomorrow night are Representatives Longworth; the floor leader; Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee; Chairman Snell of the rules committee, and Representatives Darrow, of Pennsylvania; Sanders, of Indiana; Anderson, of Minnesota; Magee, of New York; Graham, of Illinois; Tinker of Kansas; and Sinnott of Oregon, members of the republican steering committee. Mr. Longworth said today he hoped Congress would be able to adjourn before the June political convention.

From now on appropriation bills will be given priority in the house along with the Johnson immigration bill and probably a resolution to appropriate $10,000,000 for the German relief.

ECONOMIC PLEAS BANNED IN COURTS OF MISSISSIPPI

Swollen veins are dangerous and often burst. Sufferers are advised to take a two-ounce original bottle of emerald oil (full strength), at Jumbo's Pharmacy Co., and start to reduce the veins and bunches at once. Physicians recommend Emerald Oil; it is used in hospitals and a small bottle will last a long time, because it is very concentrated and a little goes a long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush directed until the swelling is reduced to normal. It is guaranteed. So marvelously powerful is Emerald Oil that enlarged glands, warts and even goitre disappear when used readily.—(adv.)

RIPON CELEBRATES 70TH ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF G. O. P.

Ripon, Wis., March 20.—The seventieth anniversary of the birth of the republican party is being celebrated in Wisconsin today. A little school house at Ripon, where the party was formed March 20, 1854, 54 men destined to go down in history as the founders of a new party to fight the extension of slavery met and formed an organization made up of white free soilers and democrats. The organization later in the same year at Jackson, Mich., took the name of "republican" but the name had already been suggested here. The school house, removed from "Main" street, Ripon, to Ripon college campus in 1908, is now visited by tourists.

Truman Parmelee, last but one of the men meeting in 1854, died in Ripon early this month at the age of 98.

Peachtree Arcade

The Arcade is truly a "city within itself." Here one can buy all of the necessities—and many of the luxuries of life.

THE bank depositor, who feels at any time, is content to allow it to remain in the hands of the bank—but once he doubts the ability of the bank to pay, he loses no time in withdrawing the funds he has on deposit.

All healthy business is based on confidence!

The success of a bank depends upon the confidence of its depositors, and the success of a store depends upon the degree of public confidence it enjoys.

Public confidence has been a big factor in the steady increase in business experienced by Peachtree Arcade merchants.

The Arcade Guarantee Plan inaugurated by the Arcade Cooperative Association about six months ago has done

EIGHT GOOD REASONS FOR THE ARCADE'S POPULARITY

1. The Arcade Guarantee Plan assures satisfaction with every article purchased from these advertisers.
2. The extraordinary convenience of being able to do ALL your shopping under one roof.
3. One finds more personal service here than at any building or shopping center in the city.
4. Because of the high character and standing of Arcade tenants.
5. The Arcade is easily accessible and located in the heart of the city.
6. One street car passes directly by or within one block of the Arcade.
7. Regardless of weather conditions the Arcade is a safe, comfortable place to shop.
8. Because of the amazing variety and quality of merchandise at such unusually attractive prices.

much to strengthen public confidence in Arcade Stores. It is a fact, however, that not once since this Guarantee plan has been in effect has the Arcade Association been called upon to settle a claim for a dissatisfied customer.

This is irrefutable evidence of high standards of merchandising employed by the members of the Arcade Cooperative Association.

These merchants are proud of this record and are determined that their business will continue upon such a plane.

NCLAIR SLATED IN THRILLER ROLE

to reach Washington before next week.

Information reaching Senator Walsh of Montana, the committee held only a brief session

"prosecutor," is that Jennings was a close friend of Jake Hamor, former representative national committeeman of Oklahoma, who was alleged to have offered his support to Major General Leonard Wood at Chicago's return for appointment as secretary of the interior.

In the absence of Wahlberg, the oil today and it proved one of the most colorful of the now six months' old investigation.

Ryan Denies Oil Deals.

Former Representative Thomas Jefferson Ryan, of New York, appeared voluntarily to deny under oath that he ever had deals in any oil business. He made an apology to the committee for bringing his name into the inquiry.

Senator Walsh told him that an "apology" was unnecessary; that it was a case of mistaken identity, and that personally he regretted that the mistake had been made. Ryan then said he had no doubt that it was an honest error on the part of his committee's auditor, Louis F. Bond.

Recalled to the stand, Bond explained how he had reached the erroneous conclusion that the account with W. B. Hibbs & Co., in the name of T. J. Ryan was the former representative and asserted that primarily the fault for the error was chargeable to Hibbs & Co. for withholding facts in the matter.

Smith's Oil Deal Bared.

Before leaving the stand and thus bringing the committee session to a close, Bond made in the record a detailed account of the oil stock transactions of Jess W. Smith, confidant of Attorney General Daugherty, which were carried on under the entry of "W. W. Spaid No. 3." Spaid is a member of the Hibbs firm.

This account showed a purchase of 1,700 shares of Sinclair and other oil stocks on Dec. 16, the sale of 800 shares at a profit of $1,531, and 900 shares remaining "in the account at the end of 1922."

Apart from questioning Sinclair about the rumors of a gift of securities to make up the republican national committee deficit, the oil investigators are prepared to question him specifically about three or four major items in the investigation as well as many others.

To Inquire Into "Loans."

The committee wants to know particularly about the circumstances surrounding his loan of $25,000 to Albert B. Fall within four months after the latter left the cabinet; the agreement to pay $1,000,000 to J. Leo Stack and Frederick Bonfils for alleged claims in Teapot Dome; the Pioneer and Belgo Oil companies for their claims in the Wyoming naval reserve.

Another new line of investigation may go into next week as a result of developments yesterday in a magistrate's court in Philadelphia. Subpoenas for the principals in the Teapot Dome affair were issued and will be dispatched to Philadelphia tomorrow. They will require the appearance here of Martin J. Powers, a lawyer, and Charles E. Oelschlager, an architect.

Darden in Again.

According to information reaching Senator Walsh, Oelschlager swore in an affidavit that Powers had told him that through his connection with Attorney General Daugherty and James G. Darden who testified before the oil committee yesterday, he was able to get into the ground floor of the Teapot Dome matter.

Senator Walsh said today he could see the end of the investigation in sight, but with new "leads" developing almost daily committee men were not prepared to say when the inquiry could be concluded. It may be that the three new phases now to be incurred into will consume considerable time.

To Wind Up Loose Ends.

After the present list of witnesses is exhausted—and if all of those under subpoena are heard that may be two weeks or more from now—Senator Walsh will review the testimony in some detail to determine whether there are any loose ends to be drawn together before a complete report can be prepared for the Senate.

The committee still has to act upon the nomination of Samuel Knight, of San Francisco, to be counsel for the government in the suits to be filed for the recovery of sections 16 and 36 in California which were granted to that state as school lands when California was admitted to the union.

Chairman Ladd is putting the committee in nomination Senator Adams, democrat, Colorado, and some others hold that senate confirmation is unnecessary as Mr. Knight is not appointed to office, but merely employed as counsel in a particular case. As sentiment now stands in the committee an adverse report on the nomination appears likely.

Proposed Stock Purchases.

Questioned again about Attorney General Daugherty's stock account, Bond said the first transaction was the sale of 500 shares of Sinclair Consolidated and the next was an outright purchase of the same number of shares.

Details of the oil stock transactions of W. W. Smith, confidant of the attorney general, as given by Bond, showed a net profit of $1,531 in 1922.

The Smith account, Bond said, was listed as "W. W. Spaid No. 3," while Attorney General Daugherty had an account as "W. W. Spaid No. 4." Spaid is a member of the Hibbs firm.

DeLoach on Weevil.

We present in this issue an interview with Dr. R. J. H. DeLoach, of the research department of Attoman & Co., of Chicago, dealing with the boll weevil situation, and showing how the militant ravages of the little pest may be turned from calamity into a blessing.

Dr. DeLoach, by invitation of several Georgia counties, has been in the state during the past week delivering addresses on the subject of the boll weevil and how to meet and overcome the pest. He has for many years been a close student of boll weevil conditions.

He is a native Georgian, a graduate of the University, was later connected with the State Agricultural College, afterwards becoming director of the Georgia Experiment station, from which he went to Attoman & Co., Chicago, as the head of their research department.

Last year this firm had Dr. De-Loach make direct and personal experiments to show what could be done in the mastering of the boll weevil.
He operated on a farm of several hundred acres near Arlington in southwest Georgia, and made a net profit of nearly $10,000 by the scientific application of calcium arsenate, and by following well defined rules of procedure that must be adopted to overcome the boll weevil.

While his farm was snow white in cotton, many others in that section had nothing to show as the fruit of a year's labor but richly foliated plants destitute of cotton.
The boll weevil had been permitted to do its work.

As the result of Dr. DeLoach's experiment cotton farming in that section is returning slowly to normal conditions, though of course in greatly reduced acreage.

Diversified farming is being generally adopted not only in that part of Georgia but throughout the state.

From now on it is a question of scientific farming, diversification, close application and eternal vigilance.

It is no longer possible to raise a cotton crop by giving the growing plants an occasional grass chopping during the summer season, leaving the rest to Providence and sunshine.

That has been the procedure in the past. But the farmer who operates on that principle today will have both time and money by planting no cotton at all.

Cotton requires as much attention as tobacco, and its yield will be as certain as tobacco if treated the same way. But its yield depends entirely upon such treatment.

No man in the country knows more about the boll weevil nor bet-ters how to control the devastating little pest than Dr. DeLoach, and if the advice so interestingly given in his interview is followed other county seats than Enterprise, Ala., will soon be erecting monuments to the boll weevil memorializing its coming as a blessing rather than a curse.

A GEORGIA OPPORTUNITY

A representative from the United States department of forestry has been in Georgia for several weeks setting out little pine saplings. The work of reforestation as a commercial proposition is increasing rapidly in the south, and yet very few people know about it, on top to appreciate its real value.

The state conservation committee of New York has recently distributed 8,700,000 saplings for reforestation in that state and proposes to have at the state nurseries fully 17,000,000 young trees available for planting in two years. This is a wonderfully important matter.
Georgia has never given proper legislative encouragement to her forestry problems, or given proper attention to the matter of conservation. Right now there ought to be a state nursery growing young pines by the millions for transplanting.

The United States in all sections has been for years cutting timber far in excess of the growth, and the wasteful, shortsighted policy in much of the timbering has been little less than sinful.

There are large areas of cut-over lands in the southeast that could today be put more profitably to use than pine forests than to any other product or commodity. The increase in feet of board timber would show a greater profit, when the small expenses are figured, than in anything else available for such lands.

Reforestation is preparation for tomorrow. Some years ago the average man who thinks would have scorned the idea that a tomorrow could ever bring such an acute timber shortage as there is today. But that tomorrow did come, and there are going to be others.

This is one great economic problem that Georgia ought to become aroused to.

CLEAN NEWSPAPERS.

Roger William Riis has made a classification of American, French, German and English newspapers.

The purpose of the investigation was to discover what the editors of the different countries are giving the people to read.

The seven leading items of newspaper interest, compared with their standing in other countries, is as follows:

America	England	France	Germany
21	37	9	30
Sports	15	3	8
Amusements	15	21	8
Politics	10	9	11
Police news	10	6	2
Foreign news	7	28	35
Arts	4	5	3

The American editor gives his readers on the average more business news than anything else. And rightly so, for business after all is one of the things that concern people most. It is the medium by which they make their living and often the gage of their prosperity.

By being engaged in business the young man hopes to marry, build a home and raise a family. For that reason the fact that such a great deal of space is given to business does not mean a cold, calculating pandering to big interests, one of the favorite outrages of the radicals against the so-called reptile press, but in reality is giving space to the greatest human interest matter.

Sports also come high in America.
They play an important part in the life of the nation. There is no assault of public morale on the sporting pages of the newspapers.

But the chief thing that Mr. Riis has accomplished is to prove to the public that the theorists who are always shouting at the press that it is one long recital of crime, scandal, murder and lawlessness, are wrong.

It is a remarkable thing that after all this American journalism, called sensational by our friends across the pond, gives no more space to crime and police news than to the extent of ten per cent of its news columns.

In foreign news Germany and France and England lead with the heaviest percentage. And small wonder. The people of these countries are vitally interested in what is happening among their neighbors. With all the sudden flare-ups that have taken place during the last ten years, with the outbreaks of violence that overthrew thrones and governments practically overnight, and an ever-ready standing army,
"all dressed up and nowhere to go,"
a hasty word spoken in a council chamber is often followed by the heavy thump of millions of feet within a short period of time.

That America devotes but 7 per cent of its news columns to foreign news is largely the result of the far lower percentage of the smaller city dailies. The metropolitan newspapers have shown a tendency of late years to gradually increase their foreign news reports and that to the apparent satisfaction of the bulk of the readers.

Georgia is right now facing a crisis in its life. The whole state and all the cities will be affected by the wind which is not going to submit to conditions that existed during the days of Abraham and Jacob.

Body mind and spirit must be developed, the regular and physical teachers are teaching on a real program. But the light is breaking by degrees. The education of school is a compromise on the part of the church, more real, vital, honest-to-goodness weekly religious education. And our protestant forces could learn some really worth while lessons from their Catholic neighbors here. Our churches are merely playing with religious education. One Sunday school superintendent, many of them had no training for their work, many of them were not even interested enough to take a course of training to keep abreast of their needs and thus knowing nothing of the real needs of their people.

Many of them have no really constructive program and depend upon the effort of a moment to run successfully a great Bible school. Many of our day school teachers know nothing whatever about the conditions of the homes and the homelife of their pupils. They run on Monday and teach until Friday and then return to the city and thus knowing nothing of the real needs of their pupils.

I am writing from the view point of one teaching in the schools of the country.
I remember the little of mathematics learned in the school from the teacher, but I remember very much of the instruction given by the teacher in the home and at the church in the Bible school between study periods. Friday to Monday.

Until we change our methods in day and Sunday schools we will continue to have only 15 per cent of our children go as far as high school and only an insignificant portion of our people in Bible school. The truth of the matter is our school authorities seem to wake up over the state or our people will continue to sleep wrapped in the obsolete garments of past generations.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STAPTON

Comes the Lady Spring.
I.
Mister Brown Sparrow,—
No frost on your wing,
An' you're a mokin' bird.
Tryin' to sing;
No weather man needs
For to tell us it's Spring!

II.
And—listen! The thunder
Is storming on high,
And lightning is leaping,
Far round the great sky,
And Winter is saying:
"Good-bye, folks, good-bye!"

III.
Hear on the Highways.
The man who says that life is only a circus of high performers ends by hollerin' for some one to save him from the wreckage when a hurricane blows the tent down on him.

IV.
Says the Philosopher:
"I don't want a front seat at the circus in this world, and I don't want to be too conspicuous in heaven, for the other saints might ask questions.
I'd find it mighty hard to answer."

V.
A Lover's Song.
Joy is coming o'er the hills, singing
on the way;
All the world is dreamin' of a rosy

VI.
Joy is comin' o'er the hills, singing
on the way;
Leaves the toil and rest you in violets
Love's feet."

VII.
But life time is toll time.
And Joy's an idle king.
A lover's song on the red lips
Wants a ruby for a ring.

VIII.
Joy is comin' o'er the hills, singing
on the way;

Leave the toil and rest you in violets
Love's feet."

And Jenny of the bright eyes
Wants a ruby for a ring.

XII.
Talks of Bull Weevil.

Of the various infestations in the south Dr. DeLoach said to a representative of the Constitution:

"The cotton farmers of the southeast have been down in the valley of desperation these past few years since the boll weevil has come to do his worst. They have been stricken with what is called 'The Boll Weevil Blues,' a name not inappropriate, since the weevil has brought a trouble so great that some cotton farmers have been unable to gather any crop at all.
Some cotton farmers have been able to gather a crop, but market only one-twentieth of their cotton crop, and have given the boll weevil what the other nineteen-twentieths, weevils, will eat up.

"This cut in the farm income has been so severe that farmers are asking themselves if it is necessary to be so good to the weevil. Is it plain common sense to let this enemy literally eat up our southern farms?"

"Before the coming of the weevil all the poor in the south had gone to the poor in each farm had gone to cotton, and then the weevil has made his appearance.
It is a satisfaction to know that our feed bill is slowly growing smaller.

"The question may well be raised, how is it possible for others to create such a real calamity? Well, we will raise it again living.

MELLON TAX RATE URGED BY BANKERS

Counterfeit Bills
Are Found on Man
Held as Gem Thief

Asheville, N. C., March 20.—A 25 cent maximum surtax rate for some taxes was urged on congress by bankers from 10 southern states meeting here today for a tax conference called by the American Bankers' league.

The bankers agreed on the 25 cent rate, which is the same as that proposed by Secretary Mellon of the treasury, was reached after several hours' discussion. Fifty-one bankers attended the meeting.

It was decided that the general chairman of the Bankers' league for the south should name a member of the committee on finance before the senate finance committee, which now has tax revision bill.

Lisbon, Portugal, March 20.—Fifteen persons were killed when a four-story house collapsed here today. Forty persons were buried under the ruins.

15 Die in Collapse.

Baltimore, March 20.—Joseph B. Snyder, 23, Baltimore, was arrested in Union station here today when accused by Max Gordon, of Philadelphia, a diamond salesman, of the larceny of $40,000 worth of diamonds, and was held for the federal authorities when detectives, it is alleged, found $20,000 worth of $20 counterfeit bills in his possession. Treasury officials declared the notes were originally $1 bills which were "washed" and then skinned as $20 bills. This process, however, is possible only to master perfumers.

In police court Gordon could not positively identify Snyder and he was dismissed on the robbery charge for lack of evidence, but was turned over to federal agents.

Gordon said he was robbed on a train going from New Orleans to Chattanooga, Tenn., September 1. He followed Snyder here today from Philadelphia, where he said he saw Snyder in the station.

LA FOLLETTE HIKES LEAD ON JOHNSON

Fargo, N. D., March 20.—Henry La Follette strengthened in several counties running late today voted to the right of the Wisconsin senator and trimmed another 1,000 votes from the plurality of President Coolidge.

La Follette jumped 3,000 votes ahead of Senator Johnson, the count in 1,558 of the state's 2,058 precincts gives Coolidge 43,164, La Follette 29,279, and Johnson 25,892.

Most of the unreported precincts are small.

CHURCHILL LOSES PARLIAMENT SEAT TO CONSERVATIVE

London, March 20.—(By the Associated Press)—Winston Churchill, standing as an independent and anti-socialist candidate, lost his seat in the parliamentary election for the Abbey division of Westminster to Sir Nicholson Nicholson, conservative, by 43 votes.

The four-cornered battle was hotly contested and attracted wide attention. The result was: Otho Nicholson, conservative, 8,187; Winston Churchill, independent, 8,144; A. F. Brockway, socialist, 6,156; Scott Duckers, liberal, 291.

The first returns showed Churchill defeated by 33 votes, but he lost ten on a recount.

CHRISTIAN CHIEF
OF CHINA TROOPS
WILL WED SOON

Peking, March 20.—Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, China's "Christian general" and the leader of 30,000 trained fighting men, has announced his engagement to Miss Li Teh-Chuan, a Christian girl and secretary of the Peiping M. C. I. College.

The general, who is a youthful and dashing leader, commands forces stationed in the neighborhood of Peking. For some time rumors have been current that he was to marry the daughter of the president of the Chinese republic, but the soldier surprised his friends, and delighted the American colony, with the news of his engagement to the Christian worker.

DEMOCRAT FROM TEXAS
MAY BE DENIED SEAT

Washington, March 20.—A recommendation that E. W. Cole, democrat, be denied a seat as representative-at-large from Texas was made to the house today by one of its election committees.

On the theory that Texas, under the 1920 census, was entitled to additional representation in congress, Mr. Cole was nominated and elected in 1922. At the beginning of the present session the house declined to recognize his election and referred the case to the election committee.

The committee's findings were that before any state could increase its house delegation it would be necessary for congress to enact a reapportionment bill.

NO REPLY RECEIVED
TO RUSS ULTIMATUM

Moscow, March 20.—(By the Associated Press)—It was stated at the foreign office shortly after noon today that no reply had yet been received to the three-day "ultimatum" to the Chinese government, delivered by M. Karakhan, soviet negotiator in Peking, on Monday, on the question of territories in Manchuria, and for reparation of relations between China and Russia signed in Peking by delegates of the two countries.

Russian official circles here declare the conduct of the Chinese government in failing to ratify the agreement holds out possibilities of the most serious consequences, the responsibility for which the Russians place upon China.

BELGIAN CABINET GETS FAITH VOTE

French Reds Use
U.S. General's Book
In Bitter Attack

Brussels, March 20.—The chamber of deputies today gave the reconstructed ministry of Premier Théunis a vote of confidence, 92 to 63.

The Théunis government was defeated two weeks ago by the combined majority socialist and Flemish nationalistic groups in the Belgian parliament. Preemptive enactment of a closer economic union with France was the rock upon which the ship of government went aground.

Emile Vandervelde, leader of the socialist group, opposed the measure on the grounds that it would entail further cooperation with France in what is termed an aggressive military undertaking, while Frank, leader of the Flemish party denounced the heading of the Belgian national committee to imperialistic France to the detriment of the Flemish national elements within the nation.

Although constitutional procedure demanded that the king should have asked Vandervelde to form a new cabinet, this method was not followed by the sovereign who feared the socialist would not accept the ministry of Versailles, full cooperation with the British labor government and evacuation of the Ruhr basin.

The king asked M. Théunis to form a new cabinet, which he succeeded in doing by making concessions to the Flemish party. The adverse votes on the motion of confidence on March 20 were given by 101 members of the Flemish party who retain their uncompromising position against the new Théunis administration.

An increase was made in the retail price of ice from 40 cents to 50 cents per 100 pounds was announced Thursday by Atlanta manufacturers and dealers. The retail prices involves lots of less than 300 pounds. The wholesale price was increased from 25 to 30 cents per 100 pounds.

Ice houses in the east of practically every material going into ice manufacture, as well as higher prices of other incidentals of operation, was given by officials of ice companies as the reason for the increase in price. Dealers complained last season of failure to make adequate return on the old prices.

The four-cornered battle was hotly contested and attracted wide attention. The result was: Otho Nicholson, conservative, 8,187; Winston Churchill, independent, 8,144; A. F. Brockway, socialist, 6,156; Scott Duckers, liberal, 291.

The first returns showed Churchill defeated by 33 votes, but he lost ten on a recount.

CHRISTIAN CHIEF
OF CHINA TROOPS
WILL WED SOON

Peking, March 20.—Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, China's "Christian general" and the leader of 30,000 trained fighting men, has announced his engagement to Miss Li Teh-Chuan, a Christian girl and secretary of the Peiping M. C. I. College.

The general, who is a youthful and dashing leader, commands forces stationed in the neighborhood of Peking. For some time rumors have been current that he was to marry the daughter of the president of the Chinese republic, but the soldier surprised his friends, and delighted the American colony, with the news of his engagement to the Christian worker.

MAY BE DENIED SEAT

Washington, March 20.—A recommendation that E. W. Cole, democrat, be denied a seat as representative-at-large from Texas was made to the house today by one of its election committees.

On the theory that Texas, under the 1920 census, was entitled to additional representation in congress, Mr. Cole was nominated and elected in 1922. At the beginning of the present session the house declined to recognize his election and referred the case to the election committee.

The committee's findings were that before any state could increase its house delegation it would be necessary for congress to enact a reapportionment bill.

NO REPLY RECEIVED
TO RUSS ULTIMATUM

Moscow, March 20.—(By the Associated Press)—It was stated at the foreign office shortly after noon today that no reply had yet been received to the three-day "ultimatum" to the Chinese government, delivered by M. Karakhan, soviet negotiator in Peking, on Monday, on the question of territories in Manchuria, and for reparation of relations between China and Russia signed in Peking by delegates of the two countries.

Russian official circles here declare the conduct of the Chinese government in failing to ratify the agreement holds out possibilities of the most serious consequences, the responsibility for which the Russians place upon China.

597 COLLUSION CASES IN REVENUE BUREAU

Paris, March 20.—Extracts from the recently published book by Major General Henry T. Allen, who commanded the American occupation forces in Germany, are published today by the communist newspaper Humanite as the basis of a bitter attack upon the government for "its policy of dismemberment of Germany."

The extracts are published under the heading "Revelations of an American General Upon the Rhine-Ruhr and the Propaganda War," which light upon French intrigues in the Rhineland tending to the formation of a Rhineland republic for the purpose of crushing Germany.

Several quotations are selected to show that General Mangin, of the French occupation army, informed General Allen "how important it is that France should remain in the Rhineland republic to the detriment of the German national elements within the nation."

The newspaper then quotes from General Allen's book his conversation with the American ambassador, Mr. T. Herrick, in which he says he asked the ambassador for the shah to be made head of the Rhineland.

General Mangin again "spoke lengthily upon the Rhineland in favor of permanently keeping the Rhineland in their possession, but the people remained apathetic. Business was suspended while these meetings were in progress."

Later addresses in favor of the establishment of a republic were delivered. Business houses and bazaars were reopened, but the anti-monarchs immediately attempted to close them by force and in the resulting disorders the people fled to the mosques for safety.

It is reported that the crown prince has been ordered to leave the palace and that the ladies of the royal household have already fled.

Members of the progressive party who are agitating for the establishment of a republic attempted to force the issue in parliament, but adjournment was taken without arriving at a decision.

"We Girls."

(At the Lyric.) Three more times will Miss Isabell Lowe, Lorraine Barnard, David Herbin and the others reveal to Atlanta theatergoers the dangers that lie in successful plastic surgery, flirtations and age and youthful romance. Tonight, tomorrow afternoon and night the play is presented "We Girls" at the Lyric theater. Next week "Up the Ladder," the latest comedy drama sensation by Orson Davis, will be presented.

At Loew's Grand.

Al Shayne, with his irresistible brand of humor is proving a real drawing card at Loew's Grand this week and capacity houses are expected to see him today and Saturday. Al Shayne, known as one of the funniest men on the vaudeville stage, has acted this year better than ever. Mr. Shayne is also a singer of real ability and he delights with some very pretty ballads. Also four other good acts.

The Hunchback.

(At Atlanta Theater.)

The Universal Production made from Victor Hugo's immortal story, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," continues in such high favor at the Atlanta theater that it is breaking all records. While the production here it has enjoyed such remarkable popularity that each performance sees the spacious auditorium packed to its capacity. Included among the leading players are Len Cheney, Patsy

"Mamie" in the screen version of the famous stage drama, is the feature picture.

(Last Half of Forsyth.)

The Bison City Four, appearing at Keith's last of the week, are certainly a pleasant surprise. It would be truthful to say that they are a new quartet creation. Their voices are sterling, their tunes are catchy and well executed. There's that clever bit of Charles Cartwell and Laura Harris, who sing songs and dances brought down the house.

The very title "Friday the 13th" of the clever skit by the blackface team, Joe Kennedy and Ray Martin suggests laughter.

The Vivians, Harry and Ada, present a remarkable sharpshooting act. Marvel and Faye are comedy contortionists.

At the Howard.

"The Marriage Circle," Ernst Lubitsch's latest picture at the Howard middle week featuring Florence Vidor, Monte Blue, Marie Prevost, Adolph Menjou and Harry Myers, is soaring heavily. Here is a picture that traces the inner working of the marriage circle with its charm of fidelity, its romance of true love and its dramatic touch of sin, with a master hand. The acting of all members of the cast is superb.

The overture is "The Light Cavalry" by the Howard Concert orchestra, Erico Leide conducting.

At the Metropolitan.

Although the term "all-star" cast has been misused by some of the producers the cast of "Lilies of the Field," the picture now playing at the Metropolitan theater, defies comparison. Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle, Crawford Kent, Charles Gerard, Cissy Fitzgerald, Sylvie Breamer, Martin Steeman, Phyllis Haver, Dorcas Brook, Alma Bennett, Edith Ranson, Charlie Murray and Mammy Peters are seen in the cast.

At the Rialto.

One of the finest detective stories ever written will be seen at the Rialto theater this week. It is the film version of "The Leavenworth Case," by Anna Katharine Green. Seena Owen, Martha Mansfield, Wilfred Lytell, Paul Doucet and Bradley Barker have leading roles in this Whitman Bennett production. Charles Gibly directed the picture.

Frolic for Whites.

(Tonight at 81 Theater.) Today the day and tonight is the night of the big midnight frolic of the season at 81 Theater. The frolic for white only will be the last offered for several months. All seats reserved. The performance will start promptly at 10:45 and end at 12:45 o'clock.

The entertainment will be headed by Sam Martin, singer of the "Blue," said to have more pep-jazz and music in her than any of her race yet offered in Atlanta.

Sylvester Weaver and his guitar will furnish a big portion of the evening's entertainment.

Seats all reserved. On sale at 81 Theater box office. Phone Wall 1154.

Dorothy Mackail says she gets her greatest inspiration for injecting pathos into her screen work by reading the works of Charles Dickens.

Call for Justice Files.

The committee also today gave a bid to the department of justice through Arthur Robb, chief of its mafis and files section. At Senator Newlands' insistence, Robb was directed to submit a list of every criminal case to the department since Mr. Daugherty took office, about 50,000 in all. Computation of the list, Robb estimated, would take six weeks. Robb testified today that he knew of no official papers being received by Jess Smith or Howard Mannington, but told of secret papers about the department and his maintenance of an office next to Mr. Daugherty's. In drawing up the order to Robb for the list of cases, Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, made several suggestions as to the information to be covered.

Rickard easily was the feature of the day's proceedings. Although reportedly he had been standing by senators, he was once again chosen as its impulsive mold, while his broken eyes kept a sharp play on his inquisitors. His voice was seldom raised, but he spoke clearly and in most cases without hesitation.

Wheeler is Astonished.

Senators manifested most interest in the promoter's statement that he went into the film exhibition upon representations from Miami, that through influence in Washington, he could get legislation within two weeks that would make the exhibitions legal. Muma told Rickard, said that "they could get propaganda and advertising or publicity and get a bill passed; that they had some weight."

"You do want me to understand, do you, that with all the papers you have had, you sell for a bank of that kind?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"I told you what they said," Rickard replied. "I would never have gone into it—into any scheme into breaking the laws."

Looked So Easy.

"After you had talked to Muma, then you concluded you would take it outside of New Jersey?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"No; it was after we got by in New York so easy. It looked easy in the rest of the country and we went on."

Muma came to him and broached the exhibition proposal about June 15, 1922, more than two weeks before the fight took place, his witness said.

The contract between Rickard, Muma and Martin, a copy of which was presented, was dated June 30. A supplemental contract between Rickard and Quimby, dated July 13, provided for bringing Orr in as a partner of Muma and Martin and for receipt by Orr of 20 per cent of the profits with Muma and Martin each receiving 15 per cent.

Picture Netted Only $36,056.

The entire picture netted only $36,056. Rickard declared, challenging the testimony of Quimby that the profits were $125,000 and that $65,000 was paid to Orr, Muma and Martin. Rickard said Orr received $4,500,000 and Muma and Martin each $10,000.

Pressed vigorously by senators,

Rickard admitted knowledge that the film exhibitions outside of New Jersey were illegal, but said he did not personally participate in any transactions except those in New York and Illinois. Quimby shipped the film to Orr.

Both Rickard and Spellacy said they knew of no connection that Jess Smith had in the pictures. Rickard declared he had never met Smith, but had conferred with Alfred R. Upton, local lawyer, in the exhibits, and identified himself as a friend of Daugherty.

Spellacy admitted that he had signed a statement, made by Holdridge, regarding Muma's admission as to the film affair, but made some changes in the Holdridge version. He quoted Muma as stating that Mr. Daugherty "thought the law (prohibiting flight film transportation) was made for a wise purpose."

Holdridge, recalled for a short time to the stand, declared William J. Burns, chief of the bureau of investigation, "was a liar." He specifically denied statements by Burns regarding his discharge and reinstatement.

Reference to the testimony of all three witnesses, Rickard, Spellacy and Holdridge, was made in tonight's statement from the department of justice. It follows:

Daugherty's Comment.

"In commenting upon proceedings before the committee investigating the department of justice, the attorney general said he noted that the testimony of Tom Rickard, former tax collector, exonerates him in every way from any possible charge of favoritism or laxity in the enforcement of the law against shipping prize fight films in interstate commerce. He testified he immediately was arrested in the very first showing of the fight films in New York city and fined $1,000; he was arrested in Chicago and fined $500, and he was held responsible for transporting the films to Illinois."

The testimony of Mr. Spellacy, a former agent of the bureau of investigation, who was invited to resign, simply related conversations with a third party and he frankly admitted that he knew nothing about the truth of the hearsay statements which he related. The feelings manifested on his part of the investigator, Mr. Holdridge, another former agent of the bureau of investigation, arose out of a matter unconnected with the attorney general or the department of justice and is not worthy of any comment.

"It would be refreshing if the committee would, in the near future, give its attention to the work of the department and attempt to show the country, if can, wherein the department is particularly subject to criticism. The attorney general also noted the investigation along the lines above dedicated and the speedy departure by the committee from the line of inquiry which it has been investigating up to this time."

DAUGHERTY'S BROTHER HALTS INVESTIGATOR.

Washington, D. C.—Washington, D. C., March 20.—(Special)—Alfred Daugherty, president of the Midland National Bank of this city and brother of Attorney General Daugherty, today refused to permit John Phelon, a special accountant sent by the senate committee probing conduct of the department of justice under the administration of Attorney General Daugherty to examine records of the bank, to continue with his work along the plan he had adopted.

Mr. Daugherty said that Mr. Phelon was present to be sick. Who will go on the stand tomorrow was unannounced.

James G. Darden, the oil promoter who appeared yesterday before the oil committee, was present today in response to a subpoena but was excused for the time being. It previously has been testified that he represents $1,000,000 exceed the 1922 receipts of the oil company. The goal of $4,000,000 has been set for the present year, and Mr. Rogers stated if receipts continue in proportion to those so far this year, the increase will be even more than expected.

he said, regarding Muma and his associates. "We got no protection and got nothing, and they got their money without doing anything."

Denies Any Conspiracy.

Rickard said he had nothing to do except receiving his share of the profits with the film exhibitions outside of New York and Illinois, where he was paid $1,000 and $500, respectively. He denied any "conspiracy" in the agreement, but maintained contracts corroborating the agreement previously testified to. He and Fred C. Quimby, New York film producer, were the parties on one side, with Muma, Ike M. Martin and Will A. Orr on the other, each group receiving 10 per cent of the proceeds.

Subpoena calling Orr and Quimby were issued yesterday, but Quimby was not present to be sick. Who will go on the stand tomorrow was unannounced.

Zbyszko Gets His Ire Up

Chicago, March 20.—Stanislaus Zbyszko, Polish wrestler who lost to Champion Ed "Strangler" Lewis a month ago when Lewis struck him on the chin, the match ending in a disturbance with Lewis being conveyed up to his hotel, botched a meeting of the city athletic commission today, declaring: "This is like Russia."

The grapplers were matched to meet again next Tuesday and the commission called the meeting to agree on rules. The Pole wanted an agreement that when the wrestlers reach the edge of the ring the stronger can jump to the center of the ring and the man on top be allowed to resume his position of advantage. Lewis insisted on resuming it in a standing position and with some indication that the commission would decide in favor of Lewis.

Zbyszko rushed from the room.

The boys have a keen desire to take onto's measure in their own back and as recompense for the 3 to 0 decision handed them by the Canadian here yesterday, Niehoff had invited to start Ray Francis against himself, but the manager had given him a little trouble of late and manager will have to look elsewhere among his staff for a burlesque to start the fray. The recent bad weather is blamed by several of the boys for the condition of their men.

Scrap-Iron Music.

Preparing for practice at 2 o'clock, boys went to work warming up in the old angle iron to which the manager Niehoff came in. Late he found them all busily engaged with the pail with exception of the manager's team always wins, and

Two fresh teams then took the floor, but the game was never even started good. Somebody discovered that they could kick the ball and a basketball game was converted into soccer. The boys had a great deal of fun with this game by kicking the ball and bunting it around with their heads. This feature ended the two-hour session.

All in all, one would say, if pressed, that things are picking up, now that election day has sped and candidates are thanking their supporters for the votes which either won for them or kept them from getting licked worse than they did. It is probably significant that Georgia should break out in a rash of interesting sporting events just after election—solace for the vanquished, for defeated candidates are thoroughly welcome at these events.

Riding in the Hotel Griffin elevator up to their sumptuous quarters after Wednesday's defeat by Toronto, Dick Niehaus and Frankie Zoellers were particularly jubilant over having been defeated in the opening game. So were others, superstitious bent. Now that the crisis has passed and no damage has been done by the indiscreet winning of an initial encounter, it is entirely likely that Niehoff, et al., will take the Howley aggregation for a ride this jolly March afternoon. If it doesn't rain.

There's no getting away from the weather.

This will also be a glowing opportunity to see what Kid Clay's nine will have to offer this season. The Kid produced a most notable outfit for Grant Field last year and consequently enjoyed a most successful season. Whether or not he will be able to chalk up victories consistently this season remains as, as the man said, question. The Buckeye series should give a good line-up the Yellowjacket hopes.

* * * * *

The match over in Augusta should prove a most active method of arousing interest in the Bobby Jones-Arthur Havers match here April 6—for the benefit of charities as consolidated into the Community Chest. And in addition it holds much interest per se. Percy, it would be hard to conceive of such a match, especially one so available to the eye—as the one in question. Four champions in a foursome, four champions who even now hold important titles, is no slouch of a line-up. A match of international aspects, undoubtedly.

REGULATIONS ARE COMPLETE

FOR BRITISH CHAMPIONSHIPS

London, March 20.—Regulations to govern the British amateur and open golf championships this year have been issued by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews. Entries in the amateur championship will be limited over the old course at St. Andrews the week beginning March 26 are limited to players having a national handicap of four or less, instead of five, as last year, but this condition will not be applied to any entrants who may come from the United States or any other country overseas. The open championship, in which many American stars are expected to compete, will be limited to 80 golfers and any who may tie for eighteenth place in the qualifying rounds. These rounds are to be played over two courses, Hoylake and Formby, both near Liverpool, all competitors doing 18 holes on each course.

The championship itself will be played over 72 holes at Hoylake on June 26 and 27. Should there be a tie for first place a play-off will be held June 28. Entries for the amateur championship close on May 9, and for the open on June 12.

"PEDDLER CAR" ON SECOND TRIP

Ira T. Williams, state entomologist, announced Thursday that the calcium arsenite "peddler car," operated by the board of entomology to provide this boll weevil poison to the farmers at less than market quotation prices, would make a second trip over the Central of Georgia railroad from Savannah to Macon, beginning March 20. The poison is sold direct from the car to the farmers in lots of 100 pounds or over. The car is sidetracked at announced points most convenient to the largest number of cotton growers.

The following itinerary is announced: Millen, March 20; Waynesboro, March 21; Augusta, March 22; Wad-

To the Voters of Fulton County and My Friends Generally:

Please allow me to express to each and all of you my deep and sincere appreciation for the confidence expressed in me and my list of deputies at the polls Wednesday. We tried in every way to conduct a gentle, clean campaign, and my re-election at your hands as county tax collector, I assure you, has given to me and my deputies renewed inspiration and a further determination to continue to render the most courteous and the very best possible service during our incumbency.

My good wife wishes me, also, to express to her many friends her deep appreciation for the courteous reception accorded her in connection with my campaign and for the support given my ticket by and through her friends.

Most sincerely

W. S. RICHARDSON.

The undersigned complete force of deputies in the tax collector's office wish to join Mr. Richardson in an expression of appreciation to Fulton county voters for the endorsement given them Wednesday.

TAXATION TALKS WILL BE HEARD
BY PRESIDENTS

Addresses by three well-known authorities on taxation will feature a dinner of the Presidents' Club of Atlanta, to be held at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night in the Woman's club banquet hall. The committee consists of Alston E. Allen, Robert C. Alston and W. D. Ellis. It is stated that names of the orators will not be announced until the meeting.

Following the dinner, which will be in charge of Mrs. Alonso Richardson, president of the Woman's club, a general internal discussion of the taxation problem will be conducted.

LAST SERVICES TODAY FOR MISS MALLINSON

Funeral services for Miss Mary Mallinson, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Mallinson, who died Thursday morning at the residence, 91 Oak street, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from St. Anthony's church, West End. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery. T. C. Bazemore is in charge.

Miss Mallinson, who was a student at St. Anthony's school, was stricken with pneumonia three weeks ago. Her father is assistant manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. In addition to her parents, she is survived by two brothers, John and Joseph Mallinson, and a sister, Miss Ann Mallinson.

Good bakings are becoming a matter of fact in this country. Years ago, the woman who had success on bake day was rare. Now, most anyone can be proud of their bakings—the young bride, the school-girl and all.

Calumet, the Economy Baking Powder, has made all this possible, it is sitting on the pantry shelf in millions of homes, that's the secret of baking success—the real reason for uniform and wholesome food.

If you are among the few who are not familiar with the results obtained from using Calumet, try it—learn the difference between the results that come from using a perfect leavener and those that are experienced when using unreliable brands.

To follow the directions on the Calumet label is to invite success. You must not use as much as you do of many other kinds. You know Calumet has greater leavening strength than many other brands—it goes farther—makes more bakings—the last spoonful is as good as the first.

EVERY INGREDIENT USED OFFICIALLY APPROVED BY U. S. FOOD AUTHORITIES

Sales 2½ times as much as that of any other brand

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. cans instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

will be adequately attended to before the houses are opened on March 30.

It is almost impossible for the general public to realize what a tremendous amount of work is being done for this community in furnishing these houses for public inspection.

Despite every effort that has been made to save the peril of trespassing on railway property, men, women and children continue this dangerous practice. On the railways of the United States, 2,142 trespassers were killed and 2,431 were injured during the first nine months of 1923.

The records of the Southern show that the great majority of victims of these accidents are young boys, fun citizens or school children who take a chance and pay for it with life or limb.

These houses will be completely furnished, and when you stop to think how many things are necessary to completely furnish a home you will realize how generous Atlanta's merchants have been to loan so much merchandise from their stocks.

Houses Vary in Price.

One exceedingly sensible and practical thing about the exhibit, is that the houses vary in price, and that they will be furnished in keeping with the price of the house. House number 1, located in Morningside, will have the most expensive furniture, stores, jewelry stores, music dealers, real estate, and home building companies, dealers in pictures and art goods, book stores, city and state offices, the Atlanta Electrical association, which is made up of jobbers, contractors, electrical, telephone and telegraph companies, which are lending their automobiles to facilitate the work of the decorators who have to be constantly on the go to furnish the houses.

It is evident from this list that there must have been great co-operation between these firms and the decorators to accomplish any sort of creditable result.

Will Be Open From 1 to 10.

The houses will open from 1 until 10 o'clock at night every day from March 30 to April 6. Visitors will be received by representatives from different stores which are co-operating, and they will be glad to answer any questions, or give any information desired. The "Home Beautiful" exhibit, is a course in practical methods of beautifying homes, and in attractive and livable ways of furnishing homes.

CLEMENCY PLEA MADE BY CHATHAM SLAYER

Petition for commutation of the death sentence of Ben Charlton, of Chatham county, to life imprisonment, was presented to the state prison commissioners. That is, by Raiford Fallagian, Charlton's attorney.

Charlton killed his wife by stabbing her in September, 1922. He is under sentence to be hanged on March 28, the original date of execution, January 5, 1923, having been stayed by appeals.

According to the petition for commutation, Charlton killed his wife accidentally, in his efforts to defend himself against attack with a knife. New trial recently was refused him by the state supreme court.

The Paradox of Lenin's
"Failure."

Having achieved peace, laid the foundations of production through assigning the rent of the land to the people by an application of the formula of Henry George, and conserved the wealth of Russia through a temporary policy of "nationalization," there remained for Lenin but one further step to complete his work. As Russia gradually progressed to normal it was evident that the ignorance of the peasant masses rendered any immediate erection of a highly developed industrial empire impossible. It became imperative, therefore, to return to individual initiative the conduct of agriculture and industry—of production, and to effect this Lenin was forced to reverse his entire program under pressure of economic necessity. It was the test, for his conception of government as an economic unit, was so sound, that could do it, it is on the other hand, government were really political, no government on earth could survive such an about-face.

That Lenin succeeded is taken abroad as admission of the failure of the Russian revolution. It is, in fact, proof of its success and of the genius of Nikolai Lenin. For, as time goes on, will it not be clear to people everywhere that when government, under whatever outward form, is immediately responsive to the economic needs of those governed, it serves the people, and when, on the other hand, the economic needs of the other hand, the economic needs of the people are warped and thwarted by political considerations, the means by which this comes to pass is not government, whatever it may be called, but bureaucracy.

"There is something else I specially liked about those floors. They had been waxed, and this had given them a lovely mellow tone. There was no guessing their age—they might have been down six months instead of six or eight years.

"When I got acquainted with my new neighbors, I learned there were several houses on our street with linoleum floors. One woman had linoleum floors in every room in her house. The women were all delighted with them because an occasional waxing and polishing is all the care they ever need. If we build, I am thinking seriously of having linoleum floors in all my rooms. I will certainly have them in my bedrooms and sun porch."

Fair and Colder
Weather Is Due
In Atlanta Today

Friday, the first full day of spring, 1924, will bring fair but colder weather, according to the local office of the U. S. weather bureau. He expects a difference of about 8 degrees at 7 o'clock Friday, as compared with Thursday morning. This would mean 38 degrees in as much as the record for Thursday at 7 o'clock was 46.

The first thunderstorm since last September visited Atlanta during the early hours of Thursday. It was interpreted by one prominent amateur weather shark as a sign that winter is bidding us goodbye. Again, according to various superstitious individuals of African descent, it was "O!

Spring officially came into being at 3:20 o'clock Thursday afternoon. She arrived a day sooner than usual, this year, by calendar measure, in as much as the additional leapyear day of February 29 pushed her debut forward from March 21 to March 20.

Those invited included Misses Jean and Neil Kendrick, Miss Mildred Smathers, Miss Georgia Pepper, Miss Eleanor Skyles, Miss Elizabeth Gaines, Mrs. Bruner,

Mrs. Jack Jones Is Guest.

A lovely compliment to Mrs. Jack Jones, who before her recent marriage was Miss Elizabeth Coggins, of Canton, Georgia, was the luncheon at which Mrs. Wilshire Riley was hostess Thursday at her home in the Ponce de Leon apartments.

The beautifully appointed luncheon table was covered with an imported lace cloth and gold in the center. The decorations included yellow daffodils, small baskets of same flowers alternated with bunches of yellow and white mints.

Mrs. Jones was beautifully gowned in powder blue crepe headed in white and worn with a smart black dress and lace hat.

Miss Rapp wore a solid costume of beige chenille with wide bands of sunburst crimson and a hat to match.

Covers were placed for fifteen friends of the hostess.

Mrs. Randall Is Hostess to Club.

Mrs. Luther Randall's bridge-luncheon was one of the liveliest social affairs. Thursday, there being a compliment to Mrs. Harry Colgrave, who is the attractive guest of Mrs. Charles Moses at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Mrs. Randall entertained at her home on Sycamore street, Decatur, and the guests included the members of her bridge club.

The rooms where the guests were received were lavishly decorated with spring flowers, the color note of yellow and white predominating throughout the decorations. Low bowls and baskets filled with daffodils, jonquils and tulips adorned the mantels and console tables.

The score cards were hand painted in dainty Dresden figures in yellow and white. The bridge and guest prizes were attractive French novelties.

Luncheon was served at the individual tables, the bonbons and ices further carrying out the yellow and white combination.

Mrs. Randall was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. W. R. McCrary. She received her guests wearing a gown of blue chiffon velvet. Mrs. Clegg's lovely costume was of brown moire and she wore a hat to match.

Mrs. McCrary was handsomely gowned in gray beaded chiffon fashioned over blue satin.

The guests included the sixteen members of the club and a few additional friends.

Miss Barwald Gives St. Patrick's Party.

Mrs. Anna Rosalind Barwald entertained Monday evening at a St. Patrick's party at her home on East North avenue.

The house was artistically decorated with beautiful ferns and Jonquils. The hostess was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. H. A. Barwald, and aunt, Mrs. R. M. Boldridge.

West End Club To Give Dance.

The West End Community club will give its weekly informal dance at the club rooms at the corner of Gordon and Lee streets Friday evening, March 21.

Miss Simpson To Speak in Decatur.

Miss Anna Simpson of the U. S. public health service, Washington, D. C., will talk to the women of Decatur at the Senior High school auditorium this morning at 11 o'clock.

This is quite an honor for Decatur through the courtesy of Dr. Bowden of the Georgia health department. All mothers are especially urged to hear her.

Orphans' Aid To Give Party.

The friends of the Hebrew Orphans' Aid Association are invited to be present at the monthly entertainment and birthday party Sunday afternoon, 3 o'clock, at the home on Washington street.

Economics Course Is Planned at Club.

Mrs. T. G. Delph, chairman of the vocational classes of the Atlanta Women's club, wishes to announce the course in "home planning" which will be given by Mrs. M. C. Moore. This course, which is one of the main branches of the home economics department, will include everything pertaining to the home, both the interior and the exterior, as well as the garden.

Miss Mary Olive Whitehead, who has won for herself a place among the artists of the city, will be the instructor of this course. The course, including ten lessons, is $2 and is open not only to club members, but to anyone who may desire to join the class.

Mrs. Delph will be at the clubhouse Friday morning from 10 to 12 o'clock to receive registrations, and anyone who wishes to know more about the course in "home planning" will call Miss Whitehead, Hem. 1722-J.

"Color in a Michigan Garden" Is Mrs. Francis King's Subject

A plot of ground 50x50 feet comprises the famous garden of Mrs. Francis King, noted horticulturist, who lectured Thursday afternoon at the Atlanta Woman's club under the sponsorship of the Peachtree Garden club. The wonderful garden is but 20 years old, and is in Alma, Mich., a town of 5,000 inhabitants. It has become so famous that people travel to see it from every part of the country, and is noted for the artistic arrangement and handling of flowers and shrubs. It is laid out in formal effect, and just above the larger garden is the trial garden where a trout is made of all the varieties of plants before being transferred to the formal plot. The subject of her lecture was "Color in a Michigan Garden."

The land around Alma is quite level, but the fertile soil and flowers grow to marvelous perfection. The home place is right in the heart of the little city at present, although 20 years ago it was on its outskirts.

A wall of exquisite shrubbery borders the two-acre ground so that the home and gardens are very private. Mrs. King illustrated her talk with colored stereopticon slides, and when she spoke of the apple orchard which she raises as a necessary feature connected with her home. The colored slides carried the audience into actual observation and gave a clear outline of the salient points of her lecture. Mrs. King advocates care and thought in planning a garden.

Her talk will be the inspiration for other garden clubs to be formed in Atlanta, and will result in civic value and beauty to the city.

Mrs. King is a most interesting

Intercollegiate Debate To Take Place Today

The annual triangular intercollegiate debate between Randolph-Macon Women's college, Agnes Scott college, and Sophie Newcomb college is an interesting event which will take place today on the following schedule: Sophie Newcomb will debate against Randolph-Macon in Lynchburg; Randolph-Macon against Agnes Scott at Decatur, Ga., and Agnes Scott against Sophie Newcomb at New Orleans.

The question is as follows: "Resolved that the United States under conditions as proposed by President Harding, adhere to the program of the court of international justice."

Randolph-Macon will uphold the affirmative of this question against Sophie Newcomb and the negative against Agnes Scott, and Agnes Scott will have the negative against Sophie Newcomb.

The members of the Peachtree Garden club entertained at a buffet luncheon preceding the lecture, at the Druid Hills Golf club in honor of Mrs. King.

The buffet luncheon was served in the green room of the club and the table was graced with a large basket holding bunches and pink roses. Other smaller tables had baskets holding quantities of jocquins.

Mrs. King was seated in black satin, and her black hat was trimmed with a lace bow.

Phizibelle Calhoun, president of the Garden club, wore a gown of black satin, and her hat was a delicate model of black satin trimmed with a rhinestone ornament.

Mrs. Vaneey Rainwater, chairman of reservations, was gowned in a French model of black satin, and her hat matched her gown.

The luncheon and lecture marked the first anniversary of the Peachtree Garden club.

Exhibitors Begin Placing 'Own Your Home' Displays

Exhibitor's began the work of placing and arranging their exhibits in the Auditorium Thursday evening for Atlanta's third annual "Open Your Home" exposition, which will open at 7 o'clock Monday night. Many of these displays have required weeks in planning and building, in addition to several days' work that is necessary in getting them placed in the most attractive manner. Many of the displays are along entirely new lines, and the approaching exposition promises to be radically different and far more elaborate than either of the previous shows.

Work on the "Ideal Home," which will be one of the chief attractions of the exposition, has been completed for more than a week and is now reaching the final stages, with a large force of workmen and painters and decorators getting it into readiness for the furnishings, draperies, landscapes and so on. Widespread interest has been manifested in the exhibit, not only because of its appealing nature and the record-breaking time within which it is being built, but also because of the announcement that it will be given away at the close of the exposition.

The house being built is such a manner that it can be easily removed from the Auditorium, and representing, as it does, a masterpiece of the home-builder's art, the hope of becoming its possessor is spreading rapidly.

Another exhibit that will be well worth seeing is the one which is the center of much interest will be that of the John R. Pattiello Lamp company. This will be a large, three-room playhouse, perfect in every detail, and well furnished and decorated.

To describe the numerous novel and attractive exhibits that will be seen in the Auditorium throughout next week, would involve repeating the list of exhibits, all of which will be unusually elaborate and attractive. The entire exposition has been planned and carried out on a much larger scale than ever before, and every effort has been put forth by those in charge to make this the greatest home-building year in the history of Atlanta.

An added feature of this year's exposition, and one which will doubtless prove as popular as well as increase the attendance, is the fact that a book of helpful information on home building will be presented without cost to visitors to the exposition who are prospective home builders.

$2,000 LOOT IS WON BY DARING BURGLARS

Property valued at approximately $2,000 was the loot obtained by burglars in three operations in Atlanta Thursday morning and afternoon.

Silverware valued at $800 and $100 worth of jewels were stolen from the home of J. R. Jimes, 208 St. Charles avenue, in the afternoon, it was reported at police headquarters, the burglary coming upon several others in the same vicinity in the last week.

Police E. J. Hunt and E. W. Gunn began search for a new woman who was said to possess the key to the Jimes dwelling, and who is under suspicion in connection with the theft.

Members of the Jimes family discovered the burglary about 4 o'clock.

Ransacking the homes of Mrs. H. S. Jacobs, 928 Piedmont avenue, and Mrs. M. E. Cleveland, 441 Bedford place, early Thursday morning, the burglars came equipped with jewels and cash to the value of about $1,000.

Mrs. Jacobs' home was entered through a rear window while the occupants slept. Two solitaire diamond rings and a crescent pin set with 20 small diamonds and $25 in cash were taken. The jewelry was valued at $800.

Men's and women's wearing apparel were taken from the home of Mrs. Cleveland, approximating a loss of $200.

FOREIGN TRADE SURVEY PLANNED FOR ATLANTA

The extent of Atlanta's foreign trade, as compared with that of other cities of approximately the same size, is to be surveyed, and steps to increase it taken, by virtue of the establishment of a foreign trade committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Paul H. Norcross, president of that body, announced Thursday.

The committee has arranged a joint meeting with the Atlanta Association of Credit Men, the Atlanta Foreign Trade club and the district headquarters of the department of commerce, to be held at the chamber building at 8 o'clock Monday night. T. R. Gress, member of the new committee, which is headed by L. D. Burns, of the Ashcraft-Wilkison company, will preside.

Others serving with Mr. Burns are T. R. Gress, Paul A. Wright, F. E. Ellis, John M. Born, Howard See, Charles E. Seeger, Charles F. Stone, L. M. Jordan, P. M. Lynch, A. J. Merritt, John W. Yopp, A. B. Chivers, Harry T. Moore, and B. C. Goetsinger and Harry O. Mitchell of the federal department of commerce.

West End Club Decision
Explained by Judge Bell

Having denied an injunction to prevent Mrs. Murray Howard as president and Mrs. H. A. Wintz, as treasurer, from filling their offices in the West End Woman's club, a statement was issued by Judge George L. Bell of Fulton superior court, Thursday explaining the full tenor of the decision.

In his statement Judge Bell declared that the effort of the executive board to evict Mrs. H. A. Turner was illegal and that Mrs. Turner is still a member in good standing. He also announced that he would appoint a master to conduct the annual meeting of the club in May.

The court's statement is as follows: "After hearing the evidence and the arguments of counsel, I am of the opinion that the West End Woman's club is a legally organized corporation and that the officers named in the complaint are the legally constituted officers thereof and are entitled to hold their offices until the next regular annual election, which is to be held on the second Wednesday in May, 1924. On that day, according to the laws of the state, no new interest can be taken in the savings department of the Fourth National bank, and they should be retained on deposit to cover the amount of money collected prior to the annual election. Such funds should be likewise deposited, less the amount of the usual and ordinary expenses of the corporation."

The court is further of the opinion that the effort of the executive board of the club to evict Mrs. H. A. Turner was illegal and that Mrs. Turner is still a member in good standing.

He also announced that he would appoint a master to conduct the annual meeting of the club in May.

Has Been Erected This Monument of Civic Utility---the Greater Rich's

TO FAIR Atlanta---wonder city of the South---city of beautiful homes---city of culture and refinement---is dedicated the greater Rich's.

Reflecting the true Atlanta Spirit of growth and progress---the same dynamic spirit responsible for her historic Stone Mountain Memorial---her Atlanta Biltmore, her Grand Opera Season and many other civic institutions that have spread the fame of Atlanta---

The new Rich store now stands forth in the Nation's eye to take its place among America's greatest retail institutions.

No better evidence of Rich's belief in Atlanta---of our faith in her future---could be given than is solidly expressed in that towering structure of steel and stone---of beauty and utility---at Broad, Alabama and Forsyth streets.

The New Rich's will serve Atlanta by making it a more beautiful city---and serve most by effecting a better standard of living for every family that comes within its new sphere of influence. The beautiful things of life will have touched Atlanta and made home life more worthwhile.

The New Rich's will give to the community a public service institution that is truly metropolitan. It will provide the utmost shopping comfort, it will bring to Atlanta a wealth of the world's finest merchandise, amid the environment and luxury of a palatial residence.

And, above all, the new Rich store will again and always prove to be the South's one store of high-powered helpfulness and TRUE ECONOMY to every man, woman and child in the community.

Atlanta Is Great Cotton Transit Point, Says Factor

BY J. J. WILLIAMSON.
The hamlet, town or city which enjoys the distinction of being a recognized cotton market must, to a large degree, attribute its prominence in the business world to its transportation advantages; adversely, the points which should have recognition in the business world as cotton markets but are not considered as such may trace their obscurity in the cotton business to lack of transportation facilities.

Atlanta, being the leading railroad center of the entire southeast, is ideally situated so as to easily become one of the most desirable cotton markets east of the Mississippi river. It situated on a great many direct lines from the cotton growing section in southern states to the main consuming centers of the entire country, virtually all the cotton that is produced in the Carolinas and originally west of Georgia moves through Atlanta. At the same time there are large quantities of cotton used in Georgia and Alabama that can and is easily moved through this important railroad center on a direct movement to mills; hence, we immediately come to the logical conclusion that Atlanta is a point at which transit can and very properly is, accorded by nature.

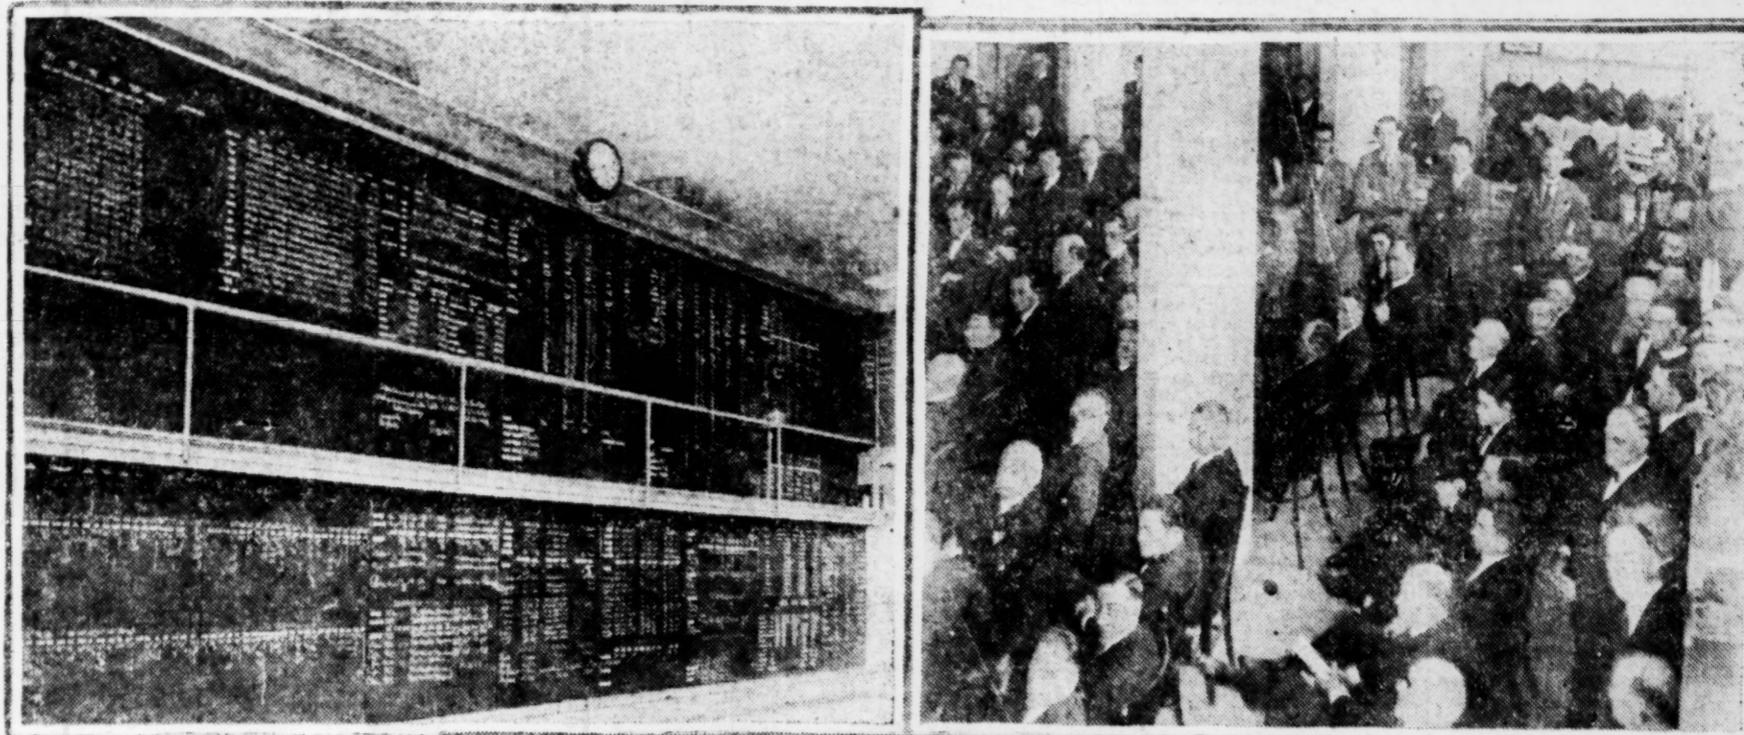

Drive for Facilities.
Then the writer first entered the cotton business at Atlanta ten or twelve years ago more or less difficultly were encountered in connection with the transiting of cotton for shipment to certain mill point destinations. In his mind there seemed to be every good reason why certain mill point destinations should enjoy the privilege of buying cotton on a transaction cost of the through rate from original producing point to final destination while other mill point destinations would be forced to pay much higher freight rates due to lack of transit privileges at the larger cotton concentrating and marketing points. Every possible energy was therefore directed toward getting increased transportation and transit facilities at Atlanta under which all mill point destinations that could logically be served as a transit arrangement through Atlanta would have the benefit of

ATLANTA IN FORE AS GREAT COTTON WASTE MARKET

BY ROBERT HECHT.
Vice President International Corporation.

Searching Webster's Dictionary for the word Waste, I find that he terms it as a "product lying unused, unproductive, and so the public has an idea of cotton waste like this, something of minor importance, of very limited quantities, and practically of no value. However, in the state of Georgia, and especially in the City of Atlanta, cotton waste has been quite an item and a number of

The large boards at the top and to the left are the quotation boards of the Atlanta Commercial Exchange, and were recently given a wider scope with the beginning of added wire facilities. At the present time these boards show quotations of cotton in the New York and New Orleans markets, and the Liverpool market. Various cotton statistics are kept on the board at all times, such as condition reports, ginnings, etc. At the lower left of the board are posted the quotations of all leading stocks on the New York Stock Exchange. To the right are the quotations on livestock, produce, grain, cotton seed oil and the money market. An operator at a telephone switchboard gives, every moment of the day, quotations to many members of the exchange who are unable to visit the floor of the exchange. The picture at the right is typical of any busy day on the floor of the exchange. Those who represent various houses and the individual traders are able to place orders at New York, New Orleans, Chicago or other places in a moment or two, both of the telegraph companies having offices and wires running into the floor of the exchange. Below, left to right, are Robert W. Smythe, cotton merchant, and president of the Atlanta Commercial Exchange; J. A. Bachman, chairman of the building committee, and former president of the exchange, and J. Hope Tigner, secretary and superintendent.

LARGEST INTERIOR COTTON MARKET IS ATLANTA'S GOAL

BY J. R. ELLIS.
President of Ellis Brothers, Inc.

Atlanta, on account of the large trunk lines running east and west from New Orleans, Vicksburg, Memphis and other river gateways, has every chance of rising to the position now enjoyed by Memphis, the reputation of being the largest interior cotton market in the world. While it is true that Memphis is located on the Mississippi river, enjoys competitive water rates and by reason of its railroads holds wonderful concentration and warehousing privilege of cotton.

Institution Plans Development of Agricultural Interests as Well as Growing of Most Salable Products.

BY ROBERT W. SMYTHE.
President Atlanta Commercial Exchange.

The organization of the Atlanta Commercial exchange resulted from a realization on the part of a number of merchants, dealing in cotton, cottonseed products, hay and grain, provisions, and the like of the need of exchange rooms, where they could obtain full market quotation facilities on these commodities and a meeting place for the exchange of business in the selling and buying from each other.

A charter was obtained from the state of Georgia, and on February 11, 1916, the Atlanta Commercial exchange was formally organized by 32 business men of Atlanta, dealing in the above varied interests.

Rooms on the ground floor of the Trust Company of Georgia building were leased and fitted up with blackboards and other facilities for the conduct of the exchange. By the time the exchange took possession of these

New Textile Directory Shows Growth in South

Interesting figures, showing the continued growth of the cotton manufacturing industry in the south, are given in the 1924 textile directory of the Southern railway system, just issued.

At the close of 1923 there were located at points served by the Southern railway system 984 textile manufacturing plants, operating 32,896,055 spindles and 254,520 looms as against 935 plants, operating 12,370,357 spindles and 212,900 looms at the close of 1922.

In 1923 the Southern states there are now 46,757,046 spindles, or 44.5 per cent of the total consumption in the United States and 1,829,402 looms more than in all states outside the south.

The most noteworthy feature of textile development in the south during 1923 was the increase in dyeing, bleaching and finishing plants. During the year plants of this character were placed in operation by the roadside and Dyeing Mills at Danville, the Irene Finishing Works at Gaffney, S. C., and the Ware Shoals Bleachery at Ware Shoals, S. C. At the close of the year, construction was under way on the large plants of the Pacific Mills Bleachery at Lyman, S. C., the Southern Bleachery at Taylor, S. C., and the Gregg Dyeing company at Graniteville, S. C.

ATLANTA COTTON WASTE MARKET

Enterprises are dealing in cotton waste to a large extent.

The south spins approximately four million bales of cotton per annum, and in spinning the cotton, a certain length of fiber is required in the yarns and the finished article, while the rest of it goes into cotton waste. Experience has shown waste ranges from ten to twelve per cent. Therefore, it can be readily seen that in the south there are produced approximately 450,000 bales of waste.

The laisman thinks what a cotton waste dealer trades in, is wiping waste, while as a matter of fact, this is the only article he excludes among the cotton waste products no deals in as wiping waste is already a finished product of a specific kind of cotton waste, so called thread waste, which consists of yarn ends, tangled yarns and some fibers, after which have gone through a machine process by waste in waste manufacturers. Therefore, it can readily be seen that no railroad could be operated without cotton waste, as the packing materials, wiping waste, etc., are derived from cotton waste.

In combing or carding cotton, wherever the mill needs a specific staple, the shorter staple, together with a certain amount of trash and dirt, is removed out of the active cotton and so produces a cotton waste called comber or card waste. Now as this grade of cotton waste has a high spinable value, large mills in the south; and especially one in Atlanta, are running to a great extent on these card strips and producing low grade yarns.

Cotton Waste.

Comber waste, which is a shorter waste fiber from high grade Peeler or Egyptian cotton, which has to be combed out of the cotton when manufacturing high-grade tire fabric, yarns, and hosiery yarns, is used exclusively, on account of its beautiful color and cleanliness, for absorbing cotton, jewelry cotton, or similar high grade hats. This grade is also mixed with cotton or white yarns, where high grade strength is not substantial, but color is wanted.

Another cotton waste product is the flings of cotton, which are scattered around the carding machines, and which are used for spinning purposes, low grade mop yarns, in sash cords, or after being thoroughly cleaned, for upholstering, high-grade mattresses and bedspreads.

These articles are really the remaining parts of the cotton, which the gins fail to remove are recleaned and furnish a waste product, which has proven highly satisfactory for high-grade upholstering in automobiles, and just as an instance, it can be cited that the Ford Motor company uses in their upholstering of automobiles approximately 40,000 bales per year of cleaned mope yarns, the which on the present markets, amounts to at least one million dollars per annum.

Even the refuse of cotton in the card and spinning rooms, as well as in the weave shops of the cotton mills, is thoroughly swept up, hauled up with all its filth, dirt, straws and iron, and still proves to have very high commercial value in the cotton trade.

The spinable stock, after it reaches the cotton mills, is later assort, washed, and is used in cheap automobile bats, or for spinning purposes of low grade mop yarns, and is also mixed into woolen products.

What cannot be spun, the roofing paper people will take through a chemical process, mix it with tar, as well as other ingredients, and it finally adorns the roofs of the best homes in the city.

Even there, the cotton waste dealer has not stopped. He goes further and cleans out every bit of waste wherever he finds it in the cotton mills, and after that, goes into the cellars of the cotton mills, where dust accumulates from the various machines, and there he makes the mills.

rooms the membership had increased to 15, and since then the scope of the exchange always broadening because of the benefits and increased facilities which developed, and the general interests by reason of the exchange. The exchange now has 250 members.

Since its organization, additional large cotton compresses and warehouses have been built in Atlanta. The hay and grain business has increased to such an extent that the exchange now employs a U. S. government appraiser expert who gives his entire time to the sorting, grading and grading of shipments, and passing upon claims, in connection with this business. The certificates of inspection issued by the Atlanta Commercial exchange are recognized as a medium of settlement.

At the beginning of its fiscal year, February 1923, a plan for the building of a home for an office building for its members, was adopted, and met with immediate approval and the hearty support of the members. A committee was appointed to look for a site, and in due time secured an option on the lot at the corner of Exchange place and Ivy street.

Committees then began securing subscriptions from the members to the bonds for the erection of the building. $80,000.00, for the site, the Atlanta Commercial exchange deserved a home of its own, and the members an office building where they could be together, that the necessary amount was very promptly subscribed by the members.

On May 1, 1923, work was begun on digging the foundation and on November 1, 1923, the Commercial Exchange, having of modern reinforced steel and concrete construction was ready for occupancy.

In addition to eight stories of offices for the members, the building affords a spacious and handsome trading room for the exchange, occupying two floors of the entire building, which have been thrown into one large auditorium with a 22-foot ceiling and mezzanine balcony, the latter and provides a lounge and resting place for the members. At the west end, another mezzanine floor contains the offices for the secretary and the superintendent of the exchange; the superintendent of the grain department of the exchange and the clerical help.

The exchange floor facilities are of the most modern equipment, with elaborate system of boards for display of daily quotations, and records of statistical information. Digest wires of the Postal and Western Union connect with all the active market exchanges of the United States, and Europe, for cotton, cotton seed products, hay and grain provisions, sugar and coffee, live stock, and all stocks and bonds, other bonds; foreign exchange and money rates. One entire side of the floor is equipped with private telephone booths for use of the members.

bale up this stock, which though some contains 75 per cent to 80 per cent of dust, the cleaning machines will beat this fiber out so that nothing material of medium class is produced.

Values of Waste.

Let us consider the average production of cotton mill waste in the south, which probably will amount to approximately 450,000 bales per annum, you will find that the prices range all the way from 10 cents to nothing, according to the poor price of cotton.

The Atlanta Commercial exchange has realized that its mission is more than simply providing market quotation facilities and it has always worked for the advancement of farming and the best interests of the farmers in the southeast. It has endeavored to help the agricultural interests as well as the growing of the most salable products.

In October, 1922, realizing the deterioration in the length of staple in the cotton of this section, and the depletion of certified seed, the exchange invited leading scientists and business men to a conference in its rooms. Two hundred and fifty were present. As a result of this meeting, the members of the Atlanta Commercial exchange personally financed the importation and distribution of many carloads of accredited staple cotton seed, delivering them at cost to the farmers. This work awakened a general movement for seed in the state of Georgia, and is reflected in the improved character of the 1923 crop.

The government bureau is very much interested in providing a point for government classification and arbitration between the cotton mills of southern mills and the southern shippers.

The Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia at its 1923 spring meeting unanimously endorsed a resolution to make Atlanta a point of government classification and arbitration. The exchange is continuing its efforts in this direction, believing it will be a great boon to the cotton mills' method of business, while New Orleans is much concerned with methods surrounding and governing exports. ## Calls on Business To Combat Economic Quack, Demagogues

Chicago, Ill., March 20.—Democrats and agitators against the present business system would be "out of a job" if there were better understanding on the part of the general public of simple economic principles, F. N. Shepherd, executive manager of the American Bankers' Association, declared yesterday at the annual regional savings conference of the organization being held here. He recommended that business organizations remote broader public education in economic subjects.

"Saving is fundamental to civilization," Mr. Shepherd said. "The unconcerned and unspent portion of the production of yesterday is the capital of today. Those who spend are decadent and self-servile. But simple as they are, the vast majority seem to have no definite understanding of their significance. The general lack of this understanding, especially in times of economic stress, makes fertile the field for misinformation. The agitator and the demagogue do not wish to give the people reasonable conditions and contentment to a people, however innocent, who are being persecuted by a price-fixing scheme, nor do mean-spirited, but are more often synonymous for wrong-headed leadership and ignorance."

"It is to get basic economic facts to the community that we are endeavoring to give a sympathetic understanding of the institution of private capital at the American Bankers' association has undertaken a campaign of otherwise."

the great Piedmont textile territory in which the development of the cotton manufacturing industry has been one of the wonders of recent years. Cotton is stored in Atlanta, which in a few hours call of mills which are now consuming more than half the cotton taken by American mills. It can be shipped on regular scheduled trains which are operated daily or, when large lots are to be moved, special train service can be secured on short notice. In recent months some remarkable runs have been made by special trains taking cotton from Atlanta to Carolina mills which as the result of some emergency found themselves in immediate need.

Cotton on storage at Atlanta is generally available for export or for coastwise movement through Savannah, Brunswick, Charleston or Norfolk. There are regular daily freight trains from Atlanta to each of these ports while any needed amount of special train service quickly available.

The concentration, reshipping, and substitution privileges in effect at Atlanta are liberal and permit the broker to make up lots out of cotton drawn from widely separated areas and to forward them at the through rate.

These advantages, coupled with Atlanta's extensive warehousing and banking facilities and its ample banking resources under the centralized enterprise and far-seeing men, whether for the growers of wheat or the manufacturers of safety razors, is of doubtful expediency in time of war or of outright iniquity in time of peace. The free play of economic forces will be large, and keep our industrial and business structure more nearly in balance than possible for us to maintain by the intrusion of artificial interference, political or otherwise."

WALL STREET BRIEFS

* Decrease in crude prices through overproduction is attributed by officials of the Gulf Oil corporation for the decline in net income for 1923, which totaled $11,325,412 in comparison with $18,752,399 in 1922.

This is equivalent to $2.29 a share $25 per value capital stock outstanding, against $4.54 a share the preceding year.

American Stores company has declared an extra dividend of 25 cents per share for 1923, bringing a balance of $14,020,366 after taxes and dividends compared with $3,215,705 in 1922. Gross sales were $94,579,950, a gain of more than $8,000,000 over the previous year.

Today brought the price of French tobacco to a new high record for the year at 51.12 cents. Renewed buying of the currency followed publication of another favorable statement by the Bank of France.

Net profits of $3,652,158 in 1923 is reported by the Harrison-Wilker refinery company, which has a cash and preferred dividends to $12.29 a share on $27,000,000 common stock against $24,793.53 or $8.56 a share the year before.

Stockholders of the Cheshborough Manufacturing company, a former Standard Oil subsidiary, are to appear at a meeting in common stock on $1,500,000 to $4,000,000, and reduction in par value from $100 to $25 with declaration of a 100 per cent stock dividend. Holders of common stock will receive eight shares of the new $25 par stock for every share of $100 par common now held when the new plan goes into effect.

Crude Oil Production Decreases During Week

New York, March 20.—Gasoline stocks increased to the extent of 2,267,162 barrels during February, according to reports received by the American Petroleum institute, covering approximately 68 per cent of the operating capacity of the United States. Pipe line and tank farm crude oil stocks east of the Rockies increased 627,000 barrels in February.

The daily average gross crude oil production of the United States decreased 4,700 barrels for the week ended March 15, totaling 9,017,700 barrels, according to the weekly summary of the institute. The daily average production east of the Rocky mountains was 1,257,750 barrels, a decrease of 350.

Oklahoma showed a daily average production of 400,150 barrels, decrease of 3,000 barrels; Kansas 69,300, decrease of 400; North Dakota 91,700, increase of 4,700; central Texas 225,600, decrease of 3,750; north Louisiana 50,650, decrease of 50; Arkansas 122,100, decrease of 1,150; Gulf coast 94,650, decrease of 1,050; eastern 97,000, decrease of 1,000, and Wyoming and Montana 127,700, increase of 2,350.

Daily average imports of petroleum at principal ports for the week ended March 15 were 249,000 barrels, compared with 300,000 for the previous week. Daily average receipts of California oil at Atlantic and Gulf coast ports were 115,857 barrels, compared with 161,000 for the previous week.

There were no changes reported in crude oil prices for major districts other than being quoted from $1.25 to $2.23 a barrel, according to the gravity of the oil. Pennsylvania crude, Bradford district, $1.50, and all other grades, $4; Gulf coast, $1.65, with some companies quoting Grade B at $1.40. California crude ranges from $1 to $1.40 a barrel, depending upon the gravity of the oil.

so far as transit is concerned. It is only proper to state that Atlanta's prominence as a cotton market can be attributed very largely to a desire on the part of the railroads serving this point to recognize the needs of the cotton trade; at the same time they have manifested a willingness to cooperate in building up the greatest industry in the south known.

Good Warehouses.

Aside from these facts, Atlanta is favored by having a number of the very best warehouses for storing cotton that can be found in the system of cities along the coast of the southeast and ample compressing facilities place Atlanta where she can compete with any point. We must not lose sight of another very important factor in the cotton business. I have no reference to banking facilities, I do not have the figures available, but suffice it to say that there are only one or two cities in the cotton belt that offer banking facilities that compare favorably with what the merchants who have offices here enjoy.

The cotton merchants of this city are not satisfied, however. We are laying plans for bigger and better things. There are still some difficulties in connection with the cotton business, which can still be remedied. What I have reference to here is the system of rates under which cotton is transported. Our friends and competitors operating west of the Mississippi river seem to have a system of rates more suitable to the cotton business than the rates which carriers have been charging us east of the river. I am informed by those who are in touch with the traffic phase of the cotton business that plans are being laid to get a system of rates in effect throughout the territory east of the Mississippi along substantially the same lines as the folks west of the river now have. If this can be done, and I believe that it will, we should be able to operate to a better advantage.

MANY PRIVILEGES IN ATLANTA'S FAVOR

As most of my cotton friends will agree, the question of substitution is another matter that has been of no little concern to us in this territory, and I am hopeful that this will be taken care of some time in the early future by a provision in tariffs that will permit a freer substitution of cotton than we have had heretofore.

Briefly summarizing, her transit privileges are exceptionally favorable; banking facilities are superior to all other points in the cotton belt; storage warehouses and compresses are of the most modern type and possibilities for improvement in all phases of the business are very good. Therefore Atlanta as a cotton market should not be outstripped by any other interior market in the world.

Financing Cotton in Atlanta

In the satisfactory and profitable handling of cotton, a very important consideration is its adequate financing on favorable terms.

In this respect Atlanta's advantages are outstanding. The railroad, distributing, and commercial center of the Southeast, located at the doorstep of Southern consuming establishments, it is also a great financial center, whose large banking houses are accustomed to financing cotton from the seed to the merchant's shelf, familiar with every step in the process, and disposed to lend every legitimate facility to a trade so vital to Southern interests.

The Fourth National Bank has been engaged in this financing extensively and continuously since 1890, and is very proud of the splendid patronage accorded it today by important cotton interests. During its third of a century's experience, it has developed and maintained toward the whole cotton structure an attitude of broad understanding and thorough co-operation. In 1914, for instance, when the outbreak of war in Europe demoralized our markets, it was the Fourth National of Atlanta that stepped into the breach to relieve chaotic conditions. Not content merely to take care of its own customers, it went further and advertised in the newspapers throughout the Southeast its ability and readiness to make loans on cotton. In the similar crisis of 1921, it took the same action.

The cotton interests of the country may thus be certain that Atlanta is for them "a safe and friendly port." Impressive as its advantages are today, they are bound to be multiplied both by the southward trend of cotton manufacturing in the United States, and by the aggressive and concerted promotion of so logical a center as a market and concentration point. In this fullest development of the Atlanta market, as well as in the widest cooperation with cotton interests generally, The Fourth National Bank in the future, as in the past and present, will play the important part fitting to its long experience, exceptional facilities, and broad, constructive policies.

Atlanta Exchange Plays Big Part In Development of Grain Industry

In every age, in every clime, the bread question has occupied the foreground and been a matter of daily concern. Every device of transportation has reckoned with it, and given the distribution of food the place of first importance. A man can paten his morning's breakfast will not lend itself to that operation tomorrow. There must be a new supply and this need is a recurrent one every day.

As cities grow and population grows, dense, ample reserve supplies must be concentrated to guard against interruption of transportation or traffic congestion and consequent delay.

Organized efforts have been recognizing this fact, the Atlanta Commercial Exchange embracing the factors engaged in this business. The grain division of the exchange includes the prominent factories and firms which handle grain and its products, and places at their disposal the facilities of trade, the opportunity for cooperative effort and the information necessary to the proper performance of service.

Atlanta is primarily a consuming market. Atlanta does not grow grain in commercial quantities and must go far afield for supplies. The exchange has had an important part in the effort to stimulate the production of grain on Georgia soil but the fact still remains that practically all the grain grown is consumed in the immediate vicinity where grown.

Largest Flour Mill.

In view of this situation Atlanta is fortunate in having right in the city a large flour mill, the largest in the Mississippi. This mill not only has a daily grinding capacity of over 2,000 barrels but has provision also for the storage of one-half million bushels of grain. The value of these facilities was demonstrated during the world war, when actual hunger confronted some large communities not so far removed from Atlanta, and the greater Atlanta flour miller, a similar condition, should it arise in the future.

The city has fully equipped and well-managed supply houses which provide primarily for the needs of beasts as well. The dairy interests are constantly growing and this calls for increasing reserves of feed. The poultry interests are well developed and must be cared for. The consumption of mule feed is of surprising volume.

Moreover Atlanta is a wonderful distributing market. No other point on the map possesses such advantages and her possibilities in this direction are most alluring. Atlanta must be

Total Cotton Crop 10,128,478, Bales, Says Bureau Report

Washington, March 20.—The total cotton crop was 10,128,478 equivalent 500-pound bales, exclusive of linters last year as shown today by the census bureau's final ginning report of the season.

This includes 15,204 baled ginnings estimated to be turned out after the March canvas.

The crop of 10,128,478 bales was estimated last December by the department of agriculture. Last year's crop of 10,226,690 bales.

The number of running bales was 10,159,498, including 242,177 round bales, counted as half bales; 22,426 bales of American Egyptian, and 785 bales of Sea Island, compared with 9,729,006 running bales, including 17,182 round ones, 32,824 of American Egyptian, and 5,125 of Sea Island in the 1922 crop.

The avera gross weight of bale for the crop was 498.5 pounds compared with 501.7 for the 1922 crop.

The 1923 crop, in equivalent 500-pound bales, by states, follows:

Alabama, 45,512; Arizona, 77,504; Arkansas, 42,024; California, 17,884; Florida, 12,345; Georgia, 587,369; Louisiana, 67,658; Mississippi, 62,508; Missouri, 120,449; North Carolina, 1,017,723; Oklahoma, 635,236; South Carolina, 769,416; Tennessee, 23,622; Texas, 4,339,940; Virginia, 50,256; all other states, 33,652.

"Gate City of the South" Now "Cotton City of Dixie"

BY LOYD A. WILHOIT.

Atlanta is called "the Gate City of the south"—and aptly so. But just as aptly might we bear the title of "the Cotton City of Dixie," for the evolution of recent years has caused Atlanta to command a more and more dominating position in the southern cotton world.

This assertion is born out by the phenomenal growth of the city. There is a cause for every effect, and it is most significant that a city situated in the heart of a cotton-producing section should enjoy expansion at a rate never equalled by its southern sisters.

There is also supporting evidence in the fact that only a comparatively short time ago the United States department of agriculture officially recognized Atlanta's importance as a cotton market by establishing here a bureau of cotton research, with headquarters for the city, and thus drawing attention to Atlanta along with other great cotton centers of the country.

These things—and others of pointed significance—are but the natural course of events in the reconstruction period of the cotton industry of Georgia following the fall of the boll weevil.

Position Strengthened.

Less than a decade ago Savannah and Augusta, Georgia's port cities, occupied the strategic positions and held the whip hand—but times have changed and conditions are still in the course of evolution that have served to strengthen their position and to strengthen Atlanta's.

Of greatest importance among these is probably the fact that American consumption figures have shown a tremendous increase of late years, with a corresponding decrease in foreign consumption.

The world war and the paralysis of England, greatly weakened shipping—which to that time had served as the trump in the hands of Augusta and Savannah, with their respective river frontage and harbor.

The illness of these ports was not eliminated when the weevil's progress caused production costs to mount at such a rate as to make the ultimate cost of cotton almost prohibitive to foreign buyers.

Deprived of the advantages of their shipping facilities, Augusta and Savannah were unable to turn to textile industry, which had now begun its flow southward. What they lacked in this respect, Atlanta had—and was making the turn of the tide.

Area of Mills.—Within her own city boundaries, Atlanta had scores of great mills consuming cotton. Bag mills, spinning mills, hosiery mills, shirt and underwear manufacturers and scores of others beckoned a steadily increasing supply of the white staple.

With the establishment of great mills in the Carolinas, and with thousands upon thousands of spindles in

"Cotton" Offers Prizes for Essays On Articles in Special Edition

The Cotton Manufacturers' association of Georgia, last week mailed to the high school principals of the state a copy of the January reprint of the special edition of "Cotton," and also notified high school principals to bring this magazine to the attention of the junior and senior classes, and notify them of the effect that prizes would be given by this association and the W. R. C. Smith Publishing company for the best essays written on subjects contained therein.

This reprint of "Cotton" contains a survey of the textile industry during the last 25 years, papers on the history of cotton, and articles on every educational contributions.

The Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia, realizing this, and feeling the need that the average school child has for information of this kind, though it would be a splendid idea to furnish this information to them. As a further educational incentive, six prizes are offered for essays upon the subject matter contained in this reprint.

Two prizes of $25 dollars each for the two best essays that are submitted; two $10 prizes for the second best, and three $5 prizes for the third. These essays are to contain not more than 250 words, and are to be submitted to the office of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia, 506-7 Commercial Exchange building, later this May 1.

The president of the association will select judges who will review the essays and award a prize on May 15.

Any further information that may be desired can be secured from the office of this association.

DR. ROSS MADE HEAD OF SOCIAL WORKERS

Dr. W. L. Ross, of Athens, chairman of the Athens municipal health committee, was elected president of the Georgia Conference of Social Workers Thursday at the concluding session of a three-day gathering. Miss Elizabeth McElmore was elected secretary.

More than 500 delegates were registered for the conference. Leaders stated that it was the largest state conference of social workers ever held in the south. A banquet at the Ansley hotel Thursday night was the concluding feature.

"CIRCUIT RIDER" CHEST DIRECTORS PREDICTED.

Small communities not big enough to afford their own Community Chest may look forward to the time when "Circuit-Rider" Community Chest directors will be at their service. Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest of St. Louis, pictured that possibility Thursday night in his address to members of Georgia's first conference of social workers, who were holding their final session before Community Chest dinner at the Ansley hotel.

Representatives of a number of cities and towns in Georgia listened with interest to Mr. Street's description of the work which he is directing in St. Louis, where the budget for the current year is approximately $1,500,000. Mr. Street formerly was director of the Louisville Chest.

Mr. Street showed a series of stereopticon pictures illustrating the appeal that the Community Chest has for the average citizen in concentrating all requests for his support into one call each year and in coordinating the welfare work of his city so that none is duplicated and none is overlooked.

Following the conclusion of his address, he announced a number of delegations from the conferring that remained the interest with which other Georgia cities are preparing to follow Atlanta's example and organize their own Community Chests.

Roy P. Gates, director of the Atlanta chest, led a brief discussion of the topic.

Hugh M. Willet, president of the Atlanta organization, presided. About 100 representatives of Georgia organizations were present.

"So!" he cried, "Pauline has been unfortunate enough to be discovered by me before the secret which we have kept hidden for so successfully for nearly eight years is out. She did not die in the wreck; we fled together. What are you going to do about it?" He uttered the falsehood boldly, realizing that Pauline, who was still unconscious, was unable to refute it.

"That suits me," said Boyd with a oath, following Weslow's example of throwing off his coat and rolling up his sleeves.

At that moment a cry broke from the lips of little Paul.

The sound was like an electric bolt to the mind of Weslow.

"The boy!" he cried hoarsely; the balance of the sentence stuck in his throat and choked him—he could not put the question into words, as he pointed to the lad who was beginning to sob hysterically over the unconscious girl.

"Pauline's—sonny!" answered Boyd boldly, enjoying the intense suffering those words brought to Weslow; for a moment he quite believed they would take the very life from him, so keen was his anguish.

At that instant little Paul ran to Weslow, throwing his arms about his neck, and looking pitifully up into his face.

"I can't wake muzzy up!" he whimpered, "won't you?"

Daniel Weslow looked down into his little upturned face, so stirred by emotion he could scarcely refrain from crying himself.

All in an instant he realized what he hitherto unexplainable reason was that had drawn his heart so forcibly to this boy—he was—Pauline's!

He had been blind not to see the great resemblance when the boy had looked up into his face with Pauline's eyes—the smile, the magic touch of her hands, her voice, her soft arms around his neck.

This boy whom he had loved with love that was next to divine—this little lad whose companionship had been all in all to him, whom he had earned for with a yearning and longing strong as life itself—was—Pauline's son, and Boyd's.

He wondered vaguely why he did not drop dead in the moment this mad thing had been made known to him.

"Come to me this instant!" cried Boyd to the lad. "You belong with me! I'll obey you or you'll get a flogging from me if you don't forget I can tell you!"

"No, no!" exclaimed the boy in alarm. "You put the bomb there—saw you."

"You won't let him hurt me, will you?" he added, clinging closer to the man with a tearful look in his eyes.

Daniel Weslow shook his head—he could not answer him.

"A fine son to ask a stranger to protect him from his own father!" agreed Boyd, with a harsh, coarse laugh.

"His discipline was been neglected.

Attaches from the hotel had come hurriedly for Pauline, carrying her here; Daniel heard them say the doctor had been sent for in all haste, and was on his way there.

He wondered that Boyd showed so little interest—not even looking as they ate their meal, nor even offering the slightest command to them. Poor Pauline! poor unhappy girl! what life she must have led with this human beast—what a price she must have paid for the folly of her infatuation!

He could have given his life for her.

"We'll get the boy out of the way and settle our accounts in short order," declared Boyd. Daniel Weslow bowed assent.

"I don't want to go away, I want to stay wherever you are," sobbed the boy, clinging closer to the man he loved so dearly.

Boyd hurled a fierce imprecation at the lad, and was about to—Daniel stopped him warmly.

"I am taking leave of the little fellow," he said, striving to hide the anguish that knowledge brought him. "In a few moments I will turn over to you."

"Well, be quick about it—though consider it is merely a play for me."

Daniel Weslow did not hear, his thoughts were so confused.

Boyd was glad of a few minutes' time to think, and he knew it would give him time to think and plan. Without the Mary Ann to make a quick getaway, he was in dangerous straits. A price was on his head not only for being the most daring bootlegger along the Pacific coast, but for other good as well.

He expected they would come at once to fetch the boy to his mother—she might be regaining consciousness.

So wrapped up were Daniel and the boy in that blissful moment they were alone together—they thought of each other.

"Ain't you going to take muzzy an' a woman son, daddy?" he inquired softly. "I wish we could start right now."

Daniel shook his head, laying his hands on the boy's shoulders. "No—you are not going away with me," he whispered in a choked voice. "I'm not going to give you back your mother." As he spoke, he took from his pocket the adaption paper, and with hands that trembled, tore it into shreds.

"Ain't I goin' to be your little boy

CHAPTER XXIX

"Oh love, young love, let saints and sinners come to the world with me, who have kept hidden the secret which we have kept hidden for so successfully for nearly eight years is out. She did not die in the wreck; we fled together. What are you going to do about it?"

He uttered the falsehood boldly, realizing that Pauline, who was still unconscious, was unable to refute it.

"It's a train car, his own making, spurious though it was, he meant to play it for all it was worth."

"Do!" echoed Daniel Weslow, his eyes blazing like coals of fire from his white face. "I intend to—kill you, sonny, I shall kill me—if we will it and you shall be here and now."

"That suits me," said Boyd with a oath, following Weslow's example of throwing off his coat and rolling up his sleeves.

"I don't want to go away, I want to stay wherever you are," sobbed the boy, clinging closer to the man he loved so dearly.

Boyd hurled a fierce imprecation at the lad, and was about to—Daniel stopped him warmly.

"I am taking leave of the little fellow," he said, striving to hide the anguish that knowledge brought him. "In a few moments I will turn over to you."

"Well, be quick about it—though consider it is merely a play for me."

Daniel Weslow did not hear, his thoughts were so confused.

Boyd was glad of a few minutes' time to think, and he knew it would give him time to think and plan. Without the Mary Ann to make a quick getaway, he was in dangerous straits. A price was on his head not only for being the most daring bootlegger along the Pacific coast, but for other good as well.

He expected they would come at once to fetch the boy to his mother—she might be regaining consciousness.

So wrapped up were Daniel and the boy in that blissful moment they were alone together—they thought of each other.

"Ain't you going to take muzzy an' a woman son, daddy?" he inquired softly. "I wish we could start right now."

Daniel shook his head, laying his hands on the boy's shoulders. "No—you are not going away with me," he whispered in a choked voice. "I'm not going to give you back your mother." As he spoke, he took from his pocket the adaption paper, and with hands that trembled, tore it into shreds.

"Ain't I goin' to be your little boy

strength and staying power of Daniel Weslow. He found he had an opportunity to win the boy's skill.

Boyd was getting the words of it when they heard the shouts of men running toward them.

"Police!" was the word that ran from lip to lip. They dragged the belligerents by the main force, apart. Boyd and the child sighted the police at the same instant.

Weslow reached for his handcuffs in his trouser hip pocket. Boyd mistook the action for an attempt on the part of Weslow to draw a weapon, and, quick as a flash, he drew his own revolver from his hip pocket, pointing it flat at his opponent, and fired.

The police were near enough by this time to see exactly what had transpired. Boyd had caught sight of the foremost of them, and recognized them; they had long been searching for him—had been hunting him down to cover. He turned his gun upon them, shooting as he ran.

His shots, like theirs, went wide of the mark.

Suddenly, before any one could divine his intention, he seized little Paul, holding him up before him, with a demoniacal laugh.

"Fire!" he shouted, "the boy'll be your target." In the moment they paused to consult as to how to proceed, he dashed him down, still clutching the screaming child, sprinted at a mad pace into the thick underbrush that lay to the right of them.

Adjacent, was an unused mine—every man of them realized he was heading for that.

As he uttered the words, he reached the mouth of the yawning pit. The boy, who had been held in his arms, fell dead.

He knew the old mine better than anyone else did. In earlier days he had worked in it—later, owned it.

In abandoning it, he had had it boarded over—but the years since then, and the seasons had rendered it almost as safe as the coming insects. The boy had taken over the mine long since, but had neglected to safeguard it.

Weslow saw by each turn Boyd made in the thicketwood, he was surety looking for the old, abandoned mine.

"A true!" he shouted. "Halt!

Boyd flung back a volley of imprecations at his pursuers.

They dared not use their guns on account of the boy.

"You'll never take me—alive!" Boyd shouted back at them. "Your promises are all lies! You've got me but I'll die game. Ha, ha, Weslow, but I'll make the man wealthy for life. Which one of you will go down?"

As he uttered the words, he reached the mouth of the yawning pit. The boy, who had been held in his arms, fell dead.

In abandoning it, he had had it boarded over—but the years since then, and the seasons had rendered it almost as safe as the coming insects. The boy had taken over the mine long since, but Onward dashed the police in close pursuit. Only a second time did Boyd stop, not this time, they were told, to dissuade him.

"Get the rope!" he repeated in a voice which told them he would brook no interference.

A heavy rope, and lanterns were brought with alacrity. He had not an instant to lose in testing the strength of it to determine if it would bear the weight of the boy and himself.

Silently they adjusted it, shuddering, and, almost crying with fear as he was lowered into the yawning,inky darkness, disappearing down the full length of the staunch rope, until he was lost in the gloom because but a mere speck, disappearing altogether from their strained gaze.

It was the message the man gave to the doctor was bending over Pauline, assuring her he boy would be placed in her arms.

"It would be as much as our lives are worth, boss," they answered, addressing him by the old title.

"The young woman has regained consciousness, and is breathing easily again."

"She may live two minutes in the foul gases."

At that moment a messenger from the hotel came hastily toward them.

"The young woman has regained consciousness, and is breathing easily again."

"She may live two minutes in the foul gases."

"It would be as much as our lives are worth, boss," they answered, addressing him by the old title.

INCOME TAX LEVY CENTER OF FIGHT

Washington, March 20.—Interest in the senate finance committee's consideration of the revenue bill turned again today to the approaching fight on the income tax rates after the committee had agreed to some further treasury provisions on technical and administrative details in the bill approved by the house.

Democrats today had submitted their prospective rates and submitted them to fiscal experts to determine their probable revenue yield, while republicans continued apparently to hold to a plan to stand by the Mellon rates adopted by the house ways and means committee but displaced by the house for the Longworth compromise.

Meanwhile, attention was centered on estimates as to the probable amount of revenue to be required by the government next year.

Difference In Estimates.

A report submitted to the committee by Undersecretary of the Treasury, George T. Edwards, gave the treasury its estimates as to the probable revenue which would be collected next year, and on which it figured the surplus available for tax reduction, had used the lower figures of two different estimates.

If the maximum estimates had been used it showed that $824,150,000 more would be collected in the next year 1924 and $484,415,000 in the following year 1925 than under the figures presented by the treasury. The treasurer had figured on the basis of the lower estimates that a surplus of $229,000,000 would be available in the fiscal year 1924 and $335,000,000 in the following year, the first in which the new revenue law would apply.

Used Revenue Office Figures.

The higher estimates on prospective receipts for the next two years were prepared by Joseph McCoy, government actuary, the report said. The acceptance of these were submitted to the commissioner of internal revenue. Mr. McCoy's estimates are to probable collections in customs were accepted for the fiscal year 1925 and were $82,000,000 below the estimates of the director of customs, whose estimates for probable customs in 1924 were used.

The table showed that the estimates of Mr. McCoy and those of the internal revenue bureau had conformed in last year.

Discussion of the report with Mr. Winston was delayed by the committee for a later date. The report was submitted to the committee without comment.

Garnier Makes Charge.

The revenue bill passed by the house, it was estimated by the treasury, would result in a loss of $446,000,000 in the fiscal year 1925.

Representative Garnier, of Texas, ranking democrat on the house ways and means committee, who previously had asked for a bill for tax rate extension, declared today that the report submitted to the senate committee "shows conclusively" he secretary of the treasury has "several sets of estimates and uses those which will best suit his argument."

"These figures show," Mr. Garnier continued, "that if the estimate of Mr. McCoy, who always before has prepared the estimates, had been used, the actual revenue surplus in the fiscal year 1925 would be $561,000,000 instead of $35,000,000."

Uses His Own Experts.

If Mr. McCoy had used the maximum figures submitted to him, Mr. McCoy's tax for collections and the director of customs' for customs collections, the surplus would amount to $643,000,000, which would be larger even than the treasury estimated would be cut off under my income tax plan."

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the house finance committee, refused today to ask the committee for estimates on the proposed rate schedules of the democrat and placed the work in the hands of experts.

MUSICIANS OF GEORGIA HEAR MRS. STAPLETON

Sandersville, Ga., March 20.—Mrs. Hubert Stapleton, of Milwaukee, musical treasurer, addressed sessions of the Georgia Federation of Music clubs today.

She urged many improvements that could be made in activities of music organizations, stating that music should be introduced in schools the same as other studies. She said music is no longer considered a mere cultural asset but a great factor in every day life, music penetrating where religion is not understood.

Miss E. V. Vaissiere, president, made her annual report to the convention urging that some method be formulated by clubs throughout the state whereby funds might be raised with which to pay for talent used on musical programs, suggesting that adoption of this plan would stimulate greater interest in music locally and statewide.

At 6 o'clock today a reception was held at the home of Mrs. Isadore Newman. Tonight's program was featured by vocal solos of Margaretha Morris and Blanche Roberts, two of Georgia's most noted singers, every number being encored by the vast audience.

TAX LEGISLATION KEPT GREEN BUSY; LATE ON RETURNS

Washington, March 20.—Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee was so busy with the new tax bill in congress that he was unable to make out his own income tax return for the first installment due last Saturday. He was found today making out his return and admitted that he had been forced to ask for special dispensation to permit a late filing.

NEW BRIDGE SOUGHT BY LYONS BOOSTERS

Watervoss, Ga., March 20.—Members of the booster club of Lyons, numbering twenty or more, were guests tonight of the Wacross and Ware county chamber of commerce at a banquet at the Merson hotel.

The visiting delegation of Toombs county citizens is advocating the building of a bridge across the Altamaha river between Toombs and Appling counties, and has just completed a twoday tour of the cities involved in the project. They came to Watervoss from Alma where they held a meeting at noon today.

Governors Will Attend Georgia Peach Pageant

Fort Valley, Ga., March 20.—(Special) —Thirty-three governors have already been invited to attend the third annual Peach Blossom pageant and festival which will be held here March 27, and invitations to others are being prepared and will be forwarded in the next few days. The committee in charge announced yesterday. Many are expected to accept.

Plans are being developed to make Georgia's peach show the most elaborate pageant ever staged in the state. The float which will convey the king and queen in the main检阅 will be draped in imported oriental with twelve large draperies forming a canopy and background for the throne. A committee under Mrs. M. T. Wise, assisted by Mrs. A. S. Cran dall will supervise decorations.

H. M. Smith, of Atlanta, vice president of the American Express company, has agreed to lend a hundred horses to draw the float. He will also provide harness used by the company in a recent New York horse show.

U. S. BELT PLANES REACH WATER HOP OPERATES AT LOSS

Seattle, Wash., March 20.—Major Frederick L. Martin, commanding and three other officers, flying four planes here today, and to night had settled down to 12 days of preparation on Sand Point aviation field for the hardest test expected in the attempt of the United States army to circumnavigate the globe through the air.

Three of the flyers, Major Martin and Lieutenants Lowell H. Smith and Lewis W. Hall, started from Washington, to Sand Point, 185 miles, in two hours and a half. They were joined later by Lieutenant Eric H. Nelson, who came from Eugene, Ore., today.

The flight was halted here for adjustments to meet difficulties of driving the machines from the United States to Japan. This, reckoned the men, was part of the course, led the decision to equip the machine here with pontoons.

The journey from the United States to Japan, 4,168 miles as mapped out along the coast of British Columbia, Alaska and through the Aleutian Islands to the Kurile Islands of Japan, the machines are to rest to mooring buoys and will not touch land.

150 BIBB-KEY HEIRS FORM ASSOCIATION

New York, March 20.—Henry Ford's railroad, the Detroit Toledo and Ironton, ordered 800 "Plan" facility, had ordered it's owners $80,250,000. The treasurer had figured on the basis of the lower estimates that a surplus of $229,000,000 would be available in the fiscal year 1924 and $335,000,000 in the following year, the first in which the new revenue law would apply.

PASTORS ASK RETURN OF BISHOP FLIPPER

Wedding Bells Ring for Rhea In St. Augustine

Declaring that certain ministers of the Northern A. M. E. church are seeking to use delegates from the south to perpetuate a system of extravagance, particularly in allowing $15 a week as expenses for delegates in the general conference instead of $9, as advised by Bishop J. S. Flipper, formerly of Georgia, resolutions urging the general conference to return Bishop Flipper to Georgia were adopted at the preachers' weekly meeting here Wednesday night.

Bishop Flipper, asked if he would return, declared he would gladly do so, having been born and reared in the south offering the greatest future to the negro. He declared that the church had within its ranks a number of bishops whose sole office was to find fault, and who refused to co-operate. It was the sense of the meeting that Bishop Flipper's influence would tend to curb the extravagance which members charged was being fostered by a group of the northern branch of the church.

Presiding Elders C. A. Wingfield, J. A. Hadley and J. R. Fleming; Revs. J. T. Hall, H. D. Canady and J. T. Wilkerson set forth the grounds upon which Bishop Flipper should be returned over the diocese of Georgia. Speeches were made on the resolution by Bishop W. F. Franklin, Presiding Elder; MacLean, of the Atlanta district; Rev. R. H. Ward of Allentown, W. J. Williams, pastor Cosmopolitan, and C. G. Gray of St. Paul strongly commanding the resolutions.

Richard D. Stinson, of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute, said: "From any viewpoint, Bishop Flipper is the proper man to lead the Negroes in the work of the M. E. church four years more. The bishop is well educated, he does not deal in politics, his position on negro migration is wise and his attitude toward Christian education is just what we need in this section."

Mrs. Albert Tasi, of Shanghai, China, traveled 8000 miles to see her husband graduate from Syracuse university.
